Fight shaping up over new criminal code

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The House Civil and Criminal Procedures Committee recommended a bill to revise Missouri's 140-year-old criminal code Wednesday night which has substantial differences from a proposed revision approved by a Senate committee.

Unlike the bill recommended by the Senate Criminal Jurisprudence Committee, the House version provides for appellate review of sentences.

The House bill also eases sex restrictions between consenting adults more than the Senate measure, but is more restrictive in allowing policemen to use force against suspected felons.

Despite the differences, the major thrust of the revision efforts—to delete antiquated language, clarify terms and restructure penalty procedures—are in agreement among the two bills.

In order to set punishment according to the severity of the crime and set standards for sentences, both bills would separate all felonies into four classes and call them Class A, B, C and D. Each category carries its own range of punishment, ranging from 10 to 30 years or life imprisonment for a Class A felony to three to five years for Class D felonies.

Misdemeanors also are placed in three categories prescribing penalties based on the severity of offense.

In discussion Wednesday night, the House committee noted its differences with the Senate bill on sex laws and appellate review of sentencing, but decided to stick by its own version to be reported to the House floor.

The House version drops penalties for sodomy between consenting adults, while the Senate version makes it a misdemeanor unless performed by a married couple. Present law sets out a penalty of at least two years in jail for sodomy.

Upon the urging of Rep. William O'Toole, D-St. Louis, the panel tightened penalties for statutory rape.

State law sets the age of consent at 16 and makes sexual intercourse with anyone under that age rape punishable by two years to life imprisonment.

The Senate revision bill makes nonforceable intercourse with a child under 12 a Class B felony, with a child 12 or 13 a Class C Felony and with a person 14 or 15 a Class C felony.

O'Toole argued that the age limits should be raised to provide extra protection to the young and the House committee thus changed its version so that intercourse with a child under 14 is a Class B felony, with a person less than 15 a Class C felony and with a person less than 16 a Class D felony.

The committee also amended another version of the sex laws to delete a provision saying that a man and woman living together as married, regardless of their legal status, would be considered married for the purposes of the section dealing with rape.

The purpose of the provision was to prohibit a woman living with a man in adultery from charging him with rape, but Rep. William Stoner, R-Springfield, said the provision might be misconstrued to mean that the legislature was condoning persons living together in adultery.

The panel members disagreed with the Senate bill by leaving in a provision which limits policemen to use deadly force in making an arrest for a felony only when the felony involves "the use or threatened use of physical force against a person."

The Senate bill allows the use of deadly force to arrest suspected felons even when the crime involves no threat or use of physical force.

The House committee rejected a proposed amendment to exempt Christian Scientists from child neglect laws in cases where medical help is needed but not administered to a child because of the parents' religious beliefs.

The amendment is included in the Senate version.

3 hurt in area accidents

A one-car accident early this morning resulted in injuries to a Hayti man, and two other persons received injuries in separate accidents in the area Wednesday, according to the highway patrol.

At 1:15 a.m. today on Route U at the Caruthersville city limits, William A. Joplin, 58, was injured in a one-car accident when his westbound car ran off the road and struck a culvert.

Joplin was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital in Hayti for treatment of minor injuries.

Another one-vehicle accident at 1 a.m. Wednesday five miles northwest of Malden on Route MM resulted in minor injuries to a Malden boy.

Billy Jay Dunn, 14, was reportedly driving a pickup truck north at a high of speed when the vehicle ran off the pavement on the west side of the road, then crossed the road to the east side and overturned.

Dunn was taken to Dexter Memorial Hospital.

An Illmo woman was injured in a two-car accident on Interstate 55 two miles south of Cape Girardeau at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The accident occurred when a northbound car driven by Terrell Parker, 22, of Benton struck the back of another northbound car, driven by Daniel Gier, 25, of Charleston, who had stopped his car in the passing lane of the highway due to a prior accident that blocked the road.

Lucille Parker, 59, received minor injuries but refused treatment.

DECA members win 13 awards

Nine members of the Sikeston High School Distributive Education Clubs of America won 13 trophies in a District DECA career development conference Friday at Dexter, which included competitive events in the field of marketing and distribution.

Also, David Butler of Sikeston was elected to the office of district vice president, the highest DECA office in the district. Butler, the only junior from Sikeston to win a trophy at the conference, will preside over district functions and attend numerous state meetings.

Besides competing in events all day long, the students participated in an awards banquet and a dance.

A total of 24 Sikeston students participated in the event.

First, second and third place winners will advance to the national event. The State contest will be held March 16-18 at the Lodge of the Four Seasons near Lake Ozark.

Sikeston students won four firsts, five seconds and four thirds, as follows:

Dennis Taylor, first in advertising; Terry Trucks, first in food store and food store project; David Butler, first in job interview, second in men's wear and second in sales; Bill Lewis, second in job skill, and second in public speaking.

Debbie Walker, second in career composition; Chuck Hampton, third in career composition; Mark Wade, third in career composition; Mark Wade, third in public speaking; Jim Beaird, third in job interviwew; and Steve Hughes, third in math of distribution.

Hampton and Hughes do not advance to state competition.

Marijuana pipe, matches found in car

Sikeston police confiscated a marijuana pipe and a canister of matches from a car they stopped early today on East Malone Avenue.

Officer Ron Sexton stopped the car about 2 a.m. after being told by a Miner police officer that the car had been seen pulling out from the back of a service station with its lights off.

Sexton said the two men in the car, both in their early 20s, told him they didn't know who the pipe belonged to or how it happened to be in the car. Police said the two were released without charges although the pipe will be checked to see if the particles inside it were marijuana. If they were, charges could be filed later police said.

Police said the service station had not been burglarized.

Senate version of death penalty goes to House

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A broad death penalty bill calling for capital punishment for all those convicted of premeditated murder was given final approval in the Missouri Senate Wednesday.

"A person committing first degree murder will be executing himself," said Sen. Ike Skelton, the Lexington Democrat who sponsored the measure.

It was approved on a 24-9 vote and it now goes to the House which already has approved a bill calling for the ultimate punishment for persons convicted of committing one of 13 categories of crime.

The bill was approved on the 10th anniversary of the state's last execution. On Feb. 26, 1965, Lloyd Leo Anderson, a 22-year-old St. Louis black, was executed in the gas chamber for his conviction in the shooting death of a drugstore delivery boy.

An opponent of the bill, Sen. Raymond Howard, D-St. Louis, said the bill was unconstitutional because it left discretion up to juries in assessing whether a person was guilty of capital murder.

The Senate bill calls for the death penalty for all those convicted of willfully, unlawfully, deliberately and with premeditation killing another person.

This is the thrid year that the Missouri legislature has wrestled with the capital punishment measure. Last year, the two houses failed to agree on which crimes should require use of the gas chamber, with the Senate taking the narrower view.

But this year, the Senate version is the broader of the two since it calls for capital punishment for all premeditated murder.

Skelton and Rep. Bob Griffin, the sponsor of the House bill, are confident that some sort of death penalty measure will reach the governor's desk during the current legislative session.

Griffin, a Cameron Democrat, said he would be in favor of the Senate's version if it were constitutional. Thirty-two states nationwide have reinstated the death penalty, Griffin said, and all of them have taken the category approach.

Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Hannibal, has said that if the legislature fails to come up with a bill this session, an initiative petition drive will be mounted to accomplish the task.

Bill creating small claims courts gets initial approval

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri House has given tentative approval to a bill creating small claims courts throughout the state.

The measure debated before the House Wednesday would require all magistrates to set aside one day a week to hear cases involving civil claims for less than $500.

The House also tentatively passed bills allowing credit unions to charge 15 per cent annual interest instead of 12 per cent on loans.

The small claims court proposal is "an attempt to bring the judicial process in this state to all citizens," said Democrat James Baker of Kansas City.

Attorneys would not be permitted to represent persons in cases and no corporations, companies or agents could file claims. To avoid the courts from being turned into bill collection agencies, no persons could file more than four claims within a 12-month period.

Should either person in the case disagree with the court's decision, he could appeal to a regular court.

Baker said the measure would allow citizens to resolve minor claims swiftly "without undue expense."

The hike in the allowable interest rate charged by credit unions came after the House turned back an amendment from the Consumer Protection Committee that would have lifted the ceiling to 26.6 per cent—the same rate as allowed by small loan companies.

Committee Chairman James Mulvaney, D-Jennings, said the same rate should apply to both small loan companies and credit unions because of a constitutional provision that says interest rates must be applied generally and to all lenders in a specific category.

Mulvaney said the change should be made to bring the law into compliance with the constitution and head off any legal challenges.

Mulvaney said that credit union officials wouldn't allow interest rates to reach the ceiling because they are elected by the union memberships.

Opponents of the amendment argued that there had never been a court challenge to the 1927 law setting the special credit union rates.

Rocky rules self out for presidency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller today virtually ruled himself out of presidential politics forever.

Citing his advanced age and a desire to keep President Ford's trust, Rockefeller declared, "I'm just not a competitive factor with the rising stars" on the Republican political front.

The vice president, 66, insisted that Ford is "bound to run and be a candidate" for re-election in 1976.

So "you've got to be talking about 1980" as to his own chances for the presidency, Rockefeller said. "And that's crazy."

He also declared that "I'm fed up with that stuff — with politics. This is no time for it. I bitterly resent people who talk about politics in the future when we've got tremendous human problems today. It's in poor taste and offensive to the American people.

"I have no prospects, no thoughts and no plans for 1980. I don't think anyone gives a good God damn about 1980."

Rockefeller's remarks came during an hour-long, post-midnight session with reporters aboard Air Force Two as he returned to Washington from a speaking engagement Wednesday night before 3,000 automotive engineers in Detroit.

As he has before, Rockefeller said he hoped and expected to become a major policy and Lisa Ann Strickland, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Strickland of Bertrand was taken to Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital in St. Louis for the closure of a heart murmur when she was only four months old.

At that time she became much too weak to tolerate extensive heart surgery and suffered a cardiac arrest. Pulmonary banding was required at that time. The cardiac arrest left Lisa with malfunction of motor ability to walk, but she is now walking with the aid of a walker.

Lisa is seen at frequent intervals at the hospital in St. Louis where she has undergone a series of operaitions. She will undergo open heart surgery when it is deemed tolerable and absolutely necessary.

She attends the State Training School in Sikeston.

Mark Taylor, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Taylor of 435 Ingram, had open heart surgery in June of 1970. He had a hole about a half inch in diameter between the two main valves in his heart. The surgery was performed at State University Hospital in Ann Arbor, Mich.

After moving to Sikeston in April of 1971, Mark went to Cardinal Glennon Hospital in St. Louis for treatment for two years but doctors now say no more treatments will be required. He attends the special learning school in Morehouse.

Earl Jarvis, owner of Jarvis Motor Co. in Sikeston, had an aorta valve replaced through open heart surgery on April 10, 1972 by Dr. Edwin Garrett at Baptist Memorial Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

Jarvis is active in civic and charity activities throughout Southeast Missouri.

Lucien M. Stoner, owner of Pyramid Roofing Co. in Sikeston, had open heart surgery Aug. 23, 1974 at Methodist Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. Veins were taken from his left leg to make an artery by-pass for his heart.

Stoner, 54, suffered a heart attack May 15, 1974 and the August surgery corrected the damage caused by his heart attack. He says he is back on the job and working full time and will require no more surgery.

COMPROMISE — OR SURRENDER?

President Ford seems now to have offered to end aid to South Vietnam altogether after the next three fiscal years if Congress will grant "significantly larger" military and economic appropriations to Saigon during this period. Such a proposition, however, even if accepted by the Congress, can scarcely provide any reassurance to the hard-pressed Vietnamese.

To put any definitive end to our aid is simply to say that after a given period, the South Vietnamese will not be able to go on fighting. And to say that is to put a final end to any hope that these brave people can avoid falling victim to communist conquest.

After having fought for 30 years in Indo-China, the Hanoi Communists are certainly not going to be discouraged at the thought of continuing the struggle for three more years. They know that at the end of this time they will continue to receive military aid from their friends whereas their foes in the South Will not.

Some may say that putting a time limit to our aid will force the Thieu government to negotiate a "political" settlement with the North. But what will there be to negotiate? Hanoi need only keep up the pressure and wait.

We hope that the Congress will recognize that placing a time limit on aid to Vietnam would be a very serious mistake. The South Vietnamese have proven during the past two years that they can fight well without direct U.S. military participation in the war. They deserve at least the necessary minimum of U.S. assistance for as long as they are willing to fight on for their liberty.

The surest way to end the war in Vietnam is to let the Communists know that the United States is not about to surrender its allies, either now, three years from now, or, if need be, ten years from now. Given that message, and with no hope of winning, the Communists would quickly end their aggression in South Vietnam.

BREAKING THE BARRIERS

Life is hard and demanding for the migrant agricultural worker and his family who follow the harvest, and it leaves little time for mingling with the mainstream of American society. But the Boys' Club chapter of Lodi, California has found time to bring American culture, sports and activities to over 500 Mexican American and Mexican National migrant children in an educational program which combines"...love, new knowledge and fun. . . ."

Operation Mainstram, as it is called, is a cooperative effort of the local Boys'Club and the Regional Migrant Education Office. It operates five nights a week in the workers' camp and twice a week in the Club downtown. The activities are planned and supervised by a bilingual (Spanish-English) staff, and educational materials are written in both languages. Organized arts and crafts, swimming, library activities and games intrigue the youngsters from May to September. The Lodi Boys' Club project, as one reports puts it,"... made some good friends and definitely broke barriers of misunderstanding between the migrant community and the permanent population."

Through this project an important segment of the population is becoming a participaint part of American society. The sense of duty and voluntarism demonstrated here has been deeply ingrained in the character of the Boys' Clubs of America ever since their inception in 1860 and is reflected in everything they do. Whether it be through a summer work program, athletics, or a recreation-education program for migrant workers' children, Boys Clubs' projects instill qualities of self-reliance,fair play and leadership into over one million youngsters in 1,000 Clubs across the nation.

It is no wonder that the "roll call" of Boys' Clubs graduates include many of the country's leading citizens--proving that dedication and friendly guidance at the local level will many times do more than any federal agency or law could hope to accomplish.

WE MUST BE FIRM

Life in these United States often seems better when we look beyond our borders to other lands. In one strife-torn South American country, for instance, all it took was one saucy motorist sticking her tongue out at an army chief for near-tragedy to strike. According to witnesses, the woman stuck out her tongue as she drove by the general's car in her red compact. He was infuriated and ordered his driver to pursue her vehicle as he shot at it. Says a resident who saw the incident, "I heard a shot, I ran outside. I saw the general. He was putting a gun to the woman's head andhe was telling her to apologize."

This appalling event would be unthinkable in the U.S., where freedom of speech and press are but two of many sacred Constitutional rights, guaranteed to all. We must be firm in our determination that it always remain so.

COMPETITON SETS FOOD PRICES, NOT COLLUSION

An interesting if not altogether enlightening colloquy between members of he House-Senate Joint Economic Committee and a spokesman for the supermarket industrytook place in Wasington in the waning day of the 93rd Congress

Spearheading the committee's investigation intothe cost of food, Sens. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., cited the frequency of identical prices in different supermarkets and suggested that the chains arrange among themselves to avoid head-on copetition.

He was "astonished," said Humphrey, to learn that a check of A&P and Safeway stores in Kansas City last October showed indentical prices on 2,969 out of 3,955 items. The two chains are respectively first and second in size and sales in the United States. Williams St. Mitchell, president of Safeway, countered that identical prices are actually proof that competition exists in the industry. When one store drops a price, others follow, he said. Thus identical prices mean they are competing, not colluding.

"We check each other's prices," said Mitchell, "and nobody in this business is going to be undersold."

Moreover, he added, the chains buy at the same prices from food producers and have similar costs.

At the same time that the committee was receiving a lesson inbasic business economics, however, the nation was being given a different illustration of how the free enterprise system works.

Defending his company's recent average 8 per cent price increase, which it rolled back slightly under pressure from the Ford administration, U.S. Steel chairman Edgar B. Speer explained that about three-fourths of the new prices represented a "catch-up" of U.S. Steel vs prices with those being charged by its major competitors.

On the face of it the, U.S. Steel was voluntaily relinquishing the advantage it presumably held over its competitors by virtue of having prices lower than theirs.

Not only is this hard to understand, but just whom the nation's No. 1 steelmaker was catching up with is not clear. At least two other companies, Bethlehem Steel and Wheeling-Pittsburch Steel, immediately announced that they would raise their prices to the levels set by U.S. Steel

Great American Game

One of the enduring pasttimes in America is taking potshots at Congress.

Reasons aren't necessary--although, unfortunately, Congress has a penchant for providing them.

Latest bombast is over the Lincoln and Washington birthdays recess. The House stuck to its guns and took the recess. The Senate is going through a charade of pro forma sessions, in which no business is conducted, in an effort to escape the slings and arrows of supposedly outraged citizens--perhaps outraged because they aren't having "vacations",too.

Main thrust of the attacks on Congress is that the senators and representatives should be at work on the huge problems of the day rather than gallavanting around in their districts.

Collateral attacks are against Congress' Tuesday through Thursday Club, meaning the House and Senate for the most part are in session only Tuesday through Thursday.

Another attack, particularly centering on the Senate, is that visitors to the Senate Chamber more often than not find only a few senators in their seats to listen to speeches.

We hate to undermine such wholesome recreation, and the emotional release it provides, of the Great American Game of Attacking Congress.

However, a few facts should be recognized, none of which will stop the game but which may add unwelcome reality to it:

No. 1--No matter how wel, organized or disorganized Congress ma y be it always encounters a lag about one month after it reconvenes. during this month both houses organize committees, introduce bills, set up work schedules for committees and all the other items needed to get the legislative machinery rolling. Committee staffs, given direction and goals by the new 1.--No matter how well organized or disoraganized Congress may be it always encounters a lag about one month after it reconvenes. During this month both houses organize committees, introduce bills, set up work schedules for committees and all the other items needed to get the legislative machinery rolling. Committee staffs, given direction and goals by the new committees, start the preliminary investigations and studies and fact-gathering which later, at hearings, will make committee members appear erudite geniuses, Staffers are doing this work now. House and Senate members during this period are just as busy doing their homework, whether it's study and research or seeing their constituents back home to get grass roots response to some of the legislative proposals introduced. Any persons who consider the home trip or the office work as a vacation should try either before pronouncing stern judgement.

And that Tuesday through Thursday Club: Just because neither house may be in session doesn't mean work is at a standstill. House and Senate offices are flooded with mail, phone calls and visits from constituents. A senator or representative who is non-reponsive to constitutents' mail, phone calls or visits risks retirement from office. The congressional work week, rather than being Tuesday through Thursday, is more generally a seven day week for the elected official. And the work hours? They'll come a lot closer to a farmer's during harvest time than they will the generally accepted 40-hour week.

Finally, that true observation that senators are seldom present in the August Senate Chamber to hear those ringing speeches. While that speaking senator is trying to save the nation or the world with words, his colleagues are in their offices answering letters, phone calls, listening to visiting constituents, attending committee meetings where the real action is, or doing their home work preparing for a committee session. All those words being spoken in the Senate Chamber will be printed in the Congressional Record and the senator can read them in a fraction of the time it takes to speak them. Besides, most senators consider themselves orators and nothing frazzles a speaker worse than listening to some other speaker.

Finally, when most of the federal employes and constituents are home, readingtheir papers or watching TV after dinner, the senator or representative frequently has to attend a reception or dinner on invitation of folks from home. Not that he may not enjoy it, but it's still work.

And he's lucky if he makes it home for the 11 p.m. news many such nights.

Rather than berate the Congress for taking recesses, we wish they would take an honest to God vacation once in a while. They and the country would be better off--and no double entendre is meant by that.

They won't, however, And they generally do little to defend themselves from the Great American Game. Perversely, they seem at times to enjoy it. So, have at it--if you like to shoot fish in a barrel.Clinton Daily Democrat

Most Important People

"Competent and dedicated employees are the greatest asset of any company." Those words by the president of Georgia Power Company hold much truth. Think how different history might read if the blacksmith had all decided to go on strike just as war was declared in the American colonies, or if the operators of the world's first printing presses had thought it was too messy a job and refused to print any books.

It doesn't take many "what-if--jaunts of the imagination to realize that life today would be totally different had it not been for the dedication of the unknown worker in the background, striving to produce qualty products and services. American business executives recognize the importance of the workingman and listen to his suggestions, complaints and ideas, often incorporating them into their enterprises's operation. The resultant upgrading of our industries has made the "Made in USA"stampon products a mark of excellence and durability that the rest of the world finds hard to match.

A 2,500 CAR

WASHINGTON--The automobile companies, who have had a tough time selling cars this year, have blamed everybody for bad business but themselves.

There has been an airlift of Detroit executives coming to Washington and testifying that the reason they've had such a bad year was because of antipollution devices, stronger bumpers and safety features that raised the price of the car to a point where Americans couldn't afford it. They have assured Washington that if they can just do away with all the safety equipment on their cars Americans would rush out to the showrooms and buy up everything they mde.

Horace Zinkel, who developed the Accordion Hatchback (it looks like an accordion when it hits another car) is one of the strongest advocates of easing up on government safety regulations.

After testifying in front of Congress he granted me an interview.

"Heaven knows, Accordion Motors is for safety," he said. "But we have to think of other things, too, like weight and mileage. We can give the American people the best car that money can buy for $2,500 if Washington would just get off our backs."

"You could produce a car for $2,500?" I asked.

"Right. Here's a sketch of it."

I studied the sketch. "Why, there are no bumpers on it."

"That's correct. You eliminate bumpers from a car and you save 150 pounds. The only time you need bumpers is when you hit something like another car or a building. Our serveys show that only 10 per cent of all automobiles ever hit something else. There is no reason for everybody to pay extra money just because a few people are going to get in an accident."

I looked at the sketch again. "Where are the windshield wipers?"

"We've eliminated them. Windshield wipers add $35 to the cost of the car, and they use up energy. In the early days we put them on the models as optional equipment because a few of our customers complained it was hard to drive when it was raining or snowing outside. Then the government insisted they had to be on all cars. Why should people who don't want windshield wipers have to pay for them?"

"There don't seem to be any windows."

"You don't need windows on a good car. Our engineers discovered they could save 100 pounds by doing away with windows. Actually, if you eliminate windows from a car you don't need doors, which allows you a bonus in weight reduction of 500 pounds. Translated into gasoline consumption, a doorless automobile will give you 1.5 more miles to the gallon."

"You still have seats," I said happily.

"Of course, we have seats. We're not going to sacrifice comfort. Our only concern is doing away with costly safety features that have nothing to do with the performance of the car."

"The gas tank looks kind of funny," I commented.

"It's made of Saranwrap, a specially treated cellophane that can hold twice the amount of fuel as a metal gas tank. By doing away with costly gas tanks we can save the co. amer $75."

"Where's the hood for the motor?" I asked.

"It's optional. Some people like hoods; some people don't. There is no reason on earth why a hood should be made standard equipment."

"It's a beautiful car," I had to admit. "Are you sure you can bring it in for $2,500?"

"I'me certain of it," he said. "Unless the government still insists on its ridiculous regulation that every new automobile has to come with brakes."

Inside Labor

Oily Waters: Inside Story of Labor's War With America's Oil Corporations

WASHINGTON — An old soldier during some Latin rural guerrilla battle I once covered told me you can't make chicken and rice without chicken. That's how it is with autos. You can't drive them without gas. Nor do you buy one so readily if the threat of $2-a-gallon gas, or no gas at all, hangs over your future tank.

Thus at the recent session of the United Auto Workers (UAW) high command it was resolved to fight for the import of as much Arab oil as the U.S. can get. For two reasons. One: the chickenless rice. Two: why deplete America's own energy resources?

Thus the UAW differed sharply with the AFL-CIO's angered outcry for a boycott of oil from the wells of those nations which boycotted the U.S. and the Netherlands during the 1973 October Israel-Arab war.

And during the auto union's International Executive Board's two-day session two weeks ago there was some talk about demanding the nationalization of the oil industry. One board member eloquently spoke of God having put the oil in the ground -- therefore it belonged to the people He created. It was a call for nationalization of the oil companies. And it was well received. The board member and his suggestion were gently tabled.

Thus it seems that the auto union, aware that almost a quarter of a million of its members are indefinitely jobless, wanted no snafuing of the flow of gasoline which might discourage auto sales.

And that this union, usually left of center, was breaking with the middle - of - the -road AFL-CIO and the right-of-center Teamsters Brotherhood on the issue of nationalization of the American oil industry.

Actually not. True, Teamsters general president Frank Fitzsimmons had said on Feb. 13 to the cheers of 500 delegates to the Brotherhood's emergency conference:

"So, I say it is time to deliver the message to the oil giants, and can do that by immediately and completely repealing their oil depletion allowance. And we'll say to them, all right, now you come aboard, and get next to our problems and help us solve them. And, if they don't, I say it is time to nationalize the oil companies and get on with the business and the problems at hand."

You see, if cars aren't produced you can't haul them. If you don't haul them in those long-rack trailer trucks you don't need teamsters. So Fitz is fighting for his people (Though the Teamsters are growing despite the recession. Membership now is 2.25 million.)

And, true, the AFL-CIO Executive Council, winding up its midwinter Bal Harbour, Fla., session, also cut loose with a demand for the nationalization, the dismantling of the vertically integrated American oil industry.

Further, I asked Fitz if he meant what he had said. Reply: "I sure as hell do. Just watch." I checked with several AFL-CIO Executive Council members. They agreed with their leader George Meany who said, in effect, if it has to be, "so be it."

Well, it was noontime Nov. 22, 1963, when I had half finished a columnn on the wind-up of an AFL-CIO Executive Council session. Meany and his colleagues were furious with the railroads. They talked privately about demanding the nationalization of America's rail lines.

That story was grimly "topped" and forgotten. The wire flash reported the shooting of Jack Kennedy.

Acutally the American labor movement doesn't really want to nationalize much of anything, I believe. It is its technique of powerful collective bargaining. Taking the offensive. Mistake it not, the "movement," the AFL-CIO, the Auto Workers, the Teamsters and probably Arnold Miller's miners, all are united in a knockdown fight with the nation's oil companies which the big corporations soon won't forget.

Much of labor's attack is stirred by the usual antipathy for the oil depletion allowance. Much is stirred by the past oil boycott and the threat of $1 to $2 a gallon gas.

Some of it is provoked by the labor movement's intensifying warfare on multi-national corporatoins.

But basically the fight now is to hit the oil companies again and again because the corporations prevailed on President Ford to veto the Energy Transportatoin Security Act.Five times President Ford personally promised his closest labor supporters -- such men as Paul Hall, head of the nine million- member Maritime Trades Dept. and Jesse Calhoon, long a White House ally, and word had gone to the National Maritime Union's president Shannon Wall -- that the act would be signed. The bill provided that at first 20 per cent of imported oil would be carried in American vessels, thus making more jobs for American seafarers. Later it would be 30 per cent. Then the President went skiing and killed the act.

Now the fight for re-passage in Congress is on. Only this time the powerful maritime unions will demand dismantling of the oil companies from their vertical operation, importing, drilling, refining, and sales as well as ownership of other energy sources.

And labor always has one trump card, a big picket sign which can tie up any dock or super port. The fight's on. That's the story behind the sudden outcry for nationalization.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Top CIA officals are debating whether to bring legal action against Philip Agee, whose book about his life in the CIA has caused havoc.

Agee listed everyone who had worked with him in the CIA in Latin American. He also added names provided, he said, by a "small group of Mexican comrades whom I trained to follow the comings and goings of CIA people before I left Mexico City."

It has cost "several million dollars," according to inside sources, to transfer the agents who had been fingered and to protect its operations in Latin America.

The CIA, however, couldn't protect all the local people whom Agee listed as CIA "collaborators." Among them were many who had only routine dealings with the CIA in such legitimate activities as drug control, antihijacking techniques and antiterrorist operations.

A number of them have been harassed with threatening phone calls. One reported that his daughter's life had been threatened and the wall in front of his home had been defaced.

In Uruguay, a taxi driver whose name appeared in Agee's book stopped at a traffic light. Another car pulled alongside him and an assailant emptied a pistol at the taxi. The driver miraculously escaped injury.

In Ecuador, an engineer on Agee's list appeared at the U.S. embassy to plead for protection. Another man; with the same last name as one of the alleged "collaborators," asked the CIA for a letter attesting to the mistaken identity.

CIA officials doubt whether they can bring legal charges against Agee as long as he stays out of the country, say our sources. Agee told us by transatlantic telephone that he hopes to return home but that he will wait until he gets the green light from his legal adviser.

He is represented by Nelvin Wulf, an American Civil Liberites Union attorney, who said he will withhold his advice until he talks to the Justice Department and learns its intentions.

"The only action they could bring against Agee," Wulf told us, "would be an espionage charge and that would be a fruitless prosecution."

Indeed, this may be precisely what the CIA has in mind. Our own CIA sources say that Agee has been kept under surveillance and that he has been spotted in the company of Cuban intelligence agents in both Paris and London.

Agee doesn't deny this. "I have seen them in Paris and London," he acknowledged to us. "I go straight to the Cuban embassy. Whether they were Cuban inteligence officers or not, I don't really care."

He added meaningfully: "I support the Cuban revolution."

He emphasized, however, that he had never been debriefed by either the Soviet KGB or Cuban DGI intelligence. But on his own initiative, he told us, he had gone to insurgent leaders and had informed them of his CIA activities against them.

"I am for the liberation movements," he said.

One source showed us documentation, which suggests but doesn't prove that Agee is under Cuban discipline. A press release, which Agee issued in London on Oct. 3, 1974, appears to have been written by the Cubans. Our source showed us language peculiarities, which indicate it was translated from colloquial Cuban Spanish.

This is denied by Agee. "I wrote that," he declared, "right on my own typewritier in Cornwall (England)." But he acknowledged that it had been duplicated for the press in the offices of a left-wing Latin American publication in London.

Our CIA sources also believe that Agee pulled his punches on Mexico's President Luis Echeverria after receiving instructions from Havana. Here's what allegedly happened:

On October 3, Agee denounced the Mexican press for omitting his account of a "close relationship" that he claimed existed between a CIA official and Echeverria.

"Mexican comrades have told me," said Agee, "that the reference to Echeverria's relationship with (the CIA man) was probably omitted by official censorship order, in itself not uncommon there, in order to save embarrassment to the incumbent." Agee carfully added that Echeverria "may have broken with the CIA when he became president."

A subsequent Agee interview, linking Echeverria with the CIA, was published in the December issue of the Colombian magazine, "Alternativa." Our sources say Echeverria let out a howl that was heard all the way to Havana.

Fidel Castro, eager to continue his good relations with Echeverria, sent a member of the Cuban politburo, Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, on a secret, one-day visit to Mexico City on December 18 to placate the Mexican president, according to our CIA sources.

Not long afterward, Agee got together with the interviewer, Gabriel Garcia Marquez, a left-wing Nobel Prize-winning writer, in Spain, say our sources. Both men issued statements exonmerating Echeverria.

Agee denied to us that he received any instructions from Havana to soften his attack upon the Mexican president.

But the question remains: Is Philip Agee an idealist who soured on the CIA and seeks only social change? Or is he a turncoat who defected to the Communists?

COMPROMISE — OR SURRENDER?

President Ford seems now to have offered to end aid to South Vietnam altogether after the next three fiscal years if Congress will grant "significantly larger" military and economic appropriations to Saigon during this period. Such a proposition, however, even if accepted by the Congress, can scarcely provide any reassurance to the hard-pressed Vietnamese.

To put any definitive end to our aid is simply to say that after a given period, the South Vietnamese will not be able to go on fighting. And to say that is to put a final end to any hope that these brave people can avoid falling victim to communist conquest.

After having fought for 30 years in Indo-China, the Hanoi Communists are certainly not going to be discouraged at the thought of continuing the struggle for three more years. They know that at the end of this time they will continue to receive military aid from their friends whereas their foes in the South Will not.

Some may say that putting a time limit to our aid will force the Thieu government to negotiate a "political" settlement with the North. But what will there be to negotiate? Hanoi need only keep up the pressure and wait.

We hope that the Congress will recognize that placing a time limit on aid to Vietnam would be a very serious mistake. The South Vietnamese have proven during the past two years that they can fight well without direct U.S. military participation in the war. They deserve at least the necessary minimum of U.S. assistance for as long as they are willing to fight on for their liberty.

The surest way to end the war in Vietnam is to let the Communists know that the United States is not about to surrender its allies, either now, three years from now, or, if need be, ten years from now. Given that message, and with no hope of winning, the Communists would quickly end their aggression in South Vietnam.

This appalling event would be unthinkable in the U.S., where freedom of speech and press are but two of many sacred Constitutional rights, guaranteed to all. We must be firm in our determination that it always remain so.

COMPETITON SETS FOOD PRICES, NOT COLLUSION

An interesting if not altogether enlightening colloquy between members of he House-Senate Joint Economic Committee and a spokesman for the supermarket industrytook place in Wasington in the waning day of the 93rd Congress

Spearheading the committee's investigation intothe cost of food, Sens. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., cited the frequency of identical prices in different supermarkets and suggested that the chains arrange among themselves to avoid head-on copetition.

He was "astonished," said Humphrey, to learn that a check of A&P and Safeway stores in Kansas City last October showed indentical prices on 2,969 out of 3,955 items. The two chains are respectively first and second in size and sales in the United States. Williams St. Mitchell, president of Safeway, countered that identical prices are actually proof that competition exists in the industry. When one store drops a price, others follow, he said. Thus identical prices mean they are competing, not colluding.

"We check each other's prices," said Mitchell, "and nobody in this business is going to be undersold."

Moreover, he added, the chains buy at the same prices from food producers and have similar costs.

At the same time that the committee was receiving a lesson inbasic business economics, however, the nation was being given a different illustration of how the free enterprise system works.

Defending his company's recent average 8 per cent price increase, which it rolled back slightly under pressure from the Ford administration, U.S. Steel chairman Edgar B. Speer explained that about three-fourths of the new prices represented a "catch-up" of U.S. Steel vs prices with those being charged by its major competitors.

On the face of it the, U.S. Steel was voluntaily relinquishing the advantage it presumably held over its competitors by virtue of having prices lower than theirs.

Not only is this hard to understand, but just whom the nation's No. 1 steelmaker was catching up with is not clear. At least two other companies, Bethlehem Steel and Wheeling-Pittsburch Steel, immediately announced that they would raise their prices to the levels set by U.S. Steel

Great American Game

One of the enduring pasttimes in America is taking potshots at Congress.

Reasons aren't necessary--although, unfortunately, Congress has a penchant for providing them.

Latest bombast is over the Lincoln and Washington birthdays recess. The House stuck to its guns and took the recess. The Senate is going through a charade of pro forma sessions, in which no business is conducted, in an effort to escape the slings and arrows of supposedly outraged citizens--perhaps outraged because they aren't having "vacations" ,too.

Main thrust of the attacks on Congress is that the senators and representatives should be at work on the huge problems of the day rather than gallavanting around in their districts.

Collateral attacks are against Congress' Tuesday through Thursday Club, meaning the House and Senate for the most part are in session only Tuesday through Thursday.

Another attack, particularly centering on the Senate, is that visitors to the Senate Chamber more often than not find only a few senators in their seats to listen to speeches.

We hate to undermine such wholesome recreation, and the emotional release it provides, of the Great American Game of Attacking Congress.

However, a few facts should be recognized, none of which will stop the game but which may add unwelcome reality to it:

No. 1--No matter how wel organized or disorganized Congress ma y be it always encounters a lag about one month after it reconvenes. during this month both houses organize committees, introduce bills, set up work schedules for committees and all the other items needed to get the legislative machinery rolling. Committee staffs, given direction and goals by the new committees, start the preliminary investigations and studies and fact-gathering which later, at hearings, will make committee members appear erudite geniuses, Staffers are doing this work now. House and Senate members during this period are just as busy doing their homework, whether it's study and research or seeing their constituents back home to get grass roots response to some of the legislative proposals introduced. Any persons who consider the home trip or the office work as a vacation should try either before pronouncing stern judgement.

And that Tuesday through Thursday Club: Just because neither house may be in session doesn't mean work is at a standstill. House and Senate offices are flooded with mail, phone calls and visits from constituents. A senator or representative who is non-reponsive to constitutents' mail, phone calls or visits risks retirement from office. The congressional work week, rather than being Tuesday through Thursday, is more generally a seven day week for the elected official. And the work hours? They'll come a lot closer to a farmer's during harvest time than they will the generally accepted 40-hour week.

Finally, that true observation that senators are seldom present in the August Senate Chamber to hear those ringing speeches. While that speaking senator is trying to save the nation or the world with words, his colleagues are in their offices answering letters, phone calls, listening to visiting constituents, attending committee meetings where the real action is, or doing their home work preparing for a committee session. All those words being spoken in the Senate Chamber will be printed in the Congressional Record and the senator can read them in a fraction of the time it takes to speak them. Besides, most senators consider themselves orators and nothing frazzles a speaker worse than listening to some other speaker.

Finally, when most of the federal employes and constituents are home, readingtheir papers or watching TV after dinner, the senator or representative frequently has to attend a reception or dinner on invitation of folks from home. Not that he may not enjoy it, but it's still work.

And he's lucky if he makes it home for the 11 p.m. news many such nights.

Rather than berate the Congress for taking recesses, we wish they would take an honest to God vacation once in a while. They and the country would be better off--and no double entendre is meant by that.

They won't, however, And they generally do little to defend themselves from the Great American Game. Perversely, they seem at times to enjoy it. So, have at it--if you like to shoot fish in a barrel.Clinton Daily Democrat

Most Important People

"Competent and dedicated employees are the greatest asset of any company." Those words by the president of Georgia Power Company hold much truth. Think how different history might read if the blacksmith had all decided to go on strike just as war was declared in the American colonies, or if the operators of the world's first printing presses had thought it was too messy a job and refused to print any books.

It doesn't take many "what-if--jaunts of the imagination to realize that life today would be totally different had it not been for the dedication of the unknown worker in the background, striving to produce qualty products and services. American business executives recognize the importance of the workingman and listen to his suggestions, complaints and ideas, often incorporating them into their enterprises's operation. The resultant upgrading of our industries has made the "Made in USA"stampon products a mark of excellence and durability that the rest of the world finds hard to match.

A 2,500 CAR

WASHINGTON--The automobile companies, who have had a tough time selling cars this year, have blamed everybody for bad business but themselves.

There has been an airlift of Detroit executives coming to Washington and testifying that the reason they've had such a bad year was because of antipollution devices, stronger bumpers and safety features that raised the price of the car to a point where Americans couldn't afford it. They have assured Washington that if they can just do away with all the safety equipment on their cars Americans would rush out to the showrooms and buy up everything they mde.

Horace Zinkel, who developed the Accordion Hatchback (it looks like an accordion when it hits another car) is one of the strongest advocates of easing up on government safety regulations.

After testifying in front of Congress he granted me an interview.

"Heaven knows, Accordion Motors is for safety," he said. "But we have to think of other things, too, like weight and mileage. We can give the American people the best car that money can buy for $2,500 if Washington would just get off our backs."

"You could produce a car for $2,500?" I asked.

"Right. Here's a sketch of it."

I studied the sketch. "Why, there are no bumpers on it."

"That's correct. You eliminate bumpers from a car and you save 150 pounds. The only time you need bumpers is when you hit something like another car or a building. Our serveys show that only 10 per cent of all automobiles ever hit something else. There is no reason for everybody to pay extra money just because a few people are going to get in an accident."

I looked at the sketch again. "Where are the windshield wipers?"

"We've eliminated them. Windshield wipers add $35 to the cost of the car, and they use up energy. In the early days we put them on the models as optional equipment because a few of our customers complained it was hard to drive when it was raining or snowing outside. Then the government insisted they had to be on all cars. Why should people who don't want windshield wipers have to pay for them?"

"There don't seem to be any windows."

"You don't need windows on a good car. Our engineers discovered they could save 100 pounds by doing away with windows. Actually, if you eliminate windows from a car you don't need doors, which allows you a bonus in weight reduction of 500 pounds. Translated into gasoline consumption, a doorless automobile will give you 1.5 more miles to the gallon."

"You still have seats," I said happily.

"Of course, we have seats. We're not going to sacrifice comfort. Our only concern is doing away with costly safety features that have nothing to do with the performance of the car."

"The gas tank looks kind of funny," I commented.

"It's made of Saranwrap, a specially treated cellophane that can hold twice the amount of fuel as a metal gas tank. By doing away with costly gas tanks we can save the co. amer $75."

"Where's the hood for the motor?" I asked.

"It's optional. Some people like hoods; some people don't. There is no reason on earth why a hood should be made standard equipment."

"It's a beautiful car," I had to admit. "Are you sure you can bring it in for $2,500?"

"I'me certain of it," he said. "Unless the government still insists on its ridiculous regulation that every new automobile has to come with brakes."

Inside Labor

Oily Waters: Inside Story of Labor's War With America's Oil Corporations

WASHINGTON — An old soldier during some Latin rural guerrilla battle I once covered told me you can't make chicken and rice without chicken. That's how it is with autos. You can't drive them without gas. Nor do you buy one so readily if the threat of $2-a-gallon gas, or no gas at all, hangs over your future tank.

Thus at the recent session of the United Auto Workers (UAW) high command it was resolved to fight for the import of as much Arab oil as the U.S. can get. For two reasons. One: the chickenless rice. Two: why deplete America's own energy resources?

Thus the UAW differed sharply with the AFL-CIO's angered outcry for a boycott of oil from the wells of those nations which boycotted the U.S. and the Netherlands during the 1973 October Israel-Arab war.

And during the auto union's International Executive Board's two-day session two weeks ago there was some talk about demanding the nationalization of the oil industry. One board member eloquently spoke of God having put the oil in the ground -- therefore it belonged to the people He created. It was a call for nationalization of the oil companies. And it was well received. The board member and his suggestion were gently tabled.

Thus it seems that the auto union, aware that almost a quarter of a million of its members are indefinitely jobless, wanted no snafuing of the flow of gasoline which might discourage auto sales.

And that this union, usually left of center, was breaking with the middle - of - the -road AFL-CIO and the right-of-center Teamsters Brotherhood on the issue of nationalization of the American oil industry.

Actually not. True, Teamsters general president Frank Fitzsimmons had said on Feb. 13 to the cheers of 500 delegates to the Brotherhood's emergency conference:

"So, I say it is time to deliver the message to the oil giants, and can do that by immediately and completely repealing their oil depletion allowance. And we'll say to them, all right, now you come aboard, and get next to our problems and help us solve them. And, if they don't, I say it is time to nationalize the oil companies and get on with the business and the problems at hand."

You see, if cars aren't produced you can't haul them. If you don't haul them in those long-rack trailer trucks you don't need teamsters. So Fitz is fighting for his people (Though the Teamsters are growing despite the recession. Membership now is 2.25 million.)

And, true, the AFL-CIO Executive Council, winding up its midwinter Bal Harbour, Fla., session, also cut loose with a demand for the nationalization, the dismantling of the vertically integrated American oil industry.

Further, I asked Fitz if he meant what he had said. Reply: "I sure as hell do. Just watch." I checked with several AFL-CIO Executive Council members. They agreed with their leader George Meany who said, in effect, if it has to be, "so be it."

Well, it was noontime Nov. 22, 1963, when I had half finished a columnn on the wind-up of an AFL-CIO Executive Council session. Meany and his colleagues were furious with the railroads. They talked privately about demanding the nationalization of America's rail lines.

That story was grimly "topped" and forgotten. The wire flash reported the shooting of Jack Kennedy.

Acutally the American labor movement doesn't really want to nationalize much of anything, I believe. It is its technique of powerful collective bargaining. Taking the offensive. Mistake it not, the "movement," the AFL-CIO, the Auto Workers, the Teamsters and probably Arnold Miller's miners, all are united in a knockdown fight with the nation's oil companies which the big corporations soon won't forget.

Much of labor's attack is stirred by the usual antipathy for the oil depletion allowance. Much is stirred by the past oil boycott and the threat of $1 to $2 a gallon gas.

Some of it is provoked by the labor movement's intensifying warfare on multi-national corporatoins.

But basically the fight now is to hit the oil companies again and again because the corporations prevailed on President Ford to veto the Energy Transportatoin Security Act.Five times President Ford personally promised his closest labor supporters -- such men as Paul Hall, head of the nine million- member Maritime Trades Dept. and Jesse Calhoon, long a White House ally, and word had gone to the National Maritime Union's president Shannon Wall -- that the act would be signed. The bill provided that at first 20 per cent of imported oil would be carried in American vessels, thus making more jobs for American seafarers. Later it would be 30 per cent. Then the President went skiing and killed the act.

Now the fight for re-passage in Congress is on. Only this time the powerful maritime unions will demand dismantling of the oil companies from their vertical operation, importing, drilling, refining, and sales as well as ownership of other energy sources.

And labor always has one trump card, a big picket sign which can tie up any dock or super port. The fight's on. That's the story behind the sudden outcry for nationalization.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON--Top CIA officals are debating whether to bring legal action against Philip Agee, whose book about his life in the CIA has caused havoc.

Agee listed everyone who had worked with him in the CIA in Latin American. He also added names provided, he said, by a "small group of Mexican comrades whom I trained to follow the comings and goings of CIA people before I left Mexico City."

It has cost "several million dollars," according to inside sources, to transfer the agents who had been fingered and to protect its operations in Latin America.

The CIA, however, couldn't protect all the local people whom Agee listed as CIA "collaborators." Among them were many who had only routine dealings with the CIA in such legitimate activities as drug control, antihijacking techniques and antiterrorist operations.

A number of them have been harassed with threatening phone calls. One reported that his daughter's life had been threatened and the wall in front of his home had been defaced.

In Uruguay, a taxi driver whose name appeared in Agee's book stopped at a traffic light. Another car pulled alongside him and an assailant emptied a pistol at the taxi. The driver miraculously escaped injury.

In Ecuador, an engineer on Agee's list appeared at the U.S. embassy to plead for protection. Another man; with the same last name as one of the alleged "collaborators," asked the CIA for a letter attesting to the mistaken identity.

CIA officials doubt whether they can bring legal charges against Agee as long as he stays out of the country, say our sources. Agee told us by transatlantic telephone that he hopes to return home but that he will wait until he gets the green light from his legal adviser.

He is represented by Nelvin Wulf, an American Civil Liberites Union attorney, who said he will withhold his advice until he talks to the Justice Department and learns its intentions.

"The only action they could bring against Agee," Wulf told us, "would be an espionage charge and that would be a fruitless prosecution."

Indeed, this may be precisely what the CIA has in mind. Our own CIA sources say that Agee has been kept under surveillance and that he has been spotted in the company of Cuban intelligence agents in both Paris and London.

Agee doesn't deny this. "I have seen them in Paris and London," he acknowledged to us. "I go straight to the Cuban embassy. Whether they were Cuban inteligence officers or not, I don't really care."

He added meaningfully: "I support the Cuban revolution."

He emphasized, however, that he had never been debriefed by either the Soviet KGB or Cuban DGI intelligence. But on his own initiative, he told us, he had gone to insurgent leaders and had informed them of his CIA activities against them.

"I am for the liberation movements," he said.

One source showed us documentation, which suggests but doesn't prove that Agee is under Cuban discipline. A press release, which Agee issued in London on Oct. 3, 1974, appears to have been written by the Cubans. Our source showed us language peculiarities, which indicate it was translated from colloquial Cuban Spanish.

This is denied by Agee. "I wrote that," he declared, "right on my own typewritier in Cornwall (England)." But he acknowledged that it had been duplicated for the press in the offices of a left-wing Latin American publication in London.

Our CIA sources also believe that Agee pulled his punches on Mexico's President Luis Echeverria after receiving instructions from Havana. Here's what allegedly happened:

On October 3, Agee denounced the Mexican press for omitting his account of a "close relationship" that he claimed existed between a CIA official and Echeverria.

"Mexican comrades have told me," said Agee, "that the reference to Echeverria's relationship with (the CIA man) was probably omitted by official censorship order, in itself not uncommon there, in order to save embarrassment to the incumbent." Agee carfully added that Echeverria "may have broken with the CIA when he became president."

A subsequent Agee interview, linking Echeverria with the CIA, was published in the December issue of the Colombian magazine, "Alternativa." Our sources say Echeverria let out a howl that was heard all the way to Havana.

Fidel Castro, eager to continue his good relations with Echeverria, sent a member of the Cuban politburo, Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, on a secret, one-day visit to Mexico City on December 18 to placate the Mexican president, according to our CIA sources.

Not long afterward, Agee got together with the interviewer, Gabriel Garcia Marquez, a left-wing Nobel Prize-winning writer, in Spain, say our sources. Both men issued statements exonerating Echeverria.

Agee denied to us that he received any instructions from Havana to soften his attack upon the Mexican president.

But the question remains: Is Philip Agee an idealist who soured on the CIA and seeks only social change? Or is he a turncoat who defected to the Communists?

Opponents to bill say tax cut would jeopardize major source

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Proponents of a bill to remove the sales tax from food and drugs termed the tax "inequitable" before a Senate Committee Wednesday, but opponents of the tax cut said it would "jeopardize the state's major tax source."

While the Senate Ways and Means Committee held off action on the bill, the House Judiciary Committee recommended passage of a bill to expand the state's public defender system.

In addition, the Senate Constitutional Amendments and Reorganization Committee heard religious leaders clash over a proposed constitutional amendment to allow the state to loan textbooks to private schools.

Sen. Raymond Howard, sponsor of the sales tax bill, said lost revenues resulting from the bill would be made up by reducing from 100 per cent to 25 per cent the federal income tax exemption in state taxes. He also said the federal tax exemption for corporations would be eliminated.

"You can't just have a few people pay all the bills," said Sen. John C. Ryan, R-Sedalia. "The poor people have to pay their share, too."

Sen. Jack Gant, D-Kansas City, said it is a "natural law" that if the costs to corporations rise, the new costs would be passed to the consumer.

A spokesman for the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey called the bill "dangerous" and said it would raise personal state income taxes from 14 to 70 per cent.

But Mary Ann Fiske, state coordinator for the Missouri Tax Reform Group, spoke in favor of the bill and said 1,200 petitions are circulating in more than 100 communities in the state to put the reduction of sales taxes on the 1976 ballot by initiative referndum.

The proponents of the bill argued the tax on groceries and drugs is "an inequtiable tax on necessities."

The bill would not remove the sales tax on food bought in restaurants and would limit drug exemptions to those received through a prescription and on insulin and prosthetics.

The public defender bill recommended by the House committee would extend the public defender system to persons accused of misdemeanors and juveniles facing jail terms.

The bill has been cited as a legislative priority by Gov. Christopher S. Bond and follows federal and state court decisions that juveniles and misdemeanor suspects facing jail terms have a constitutional right to an attorney even though they cannot afford one.

Regarding the proposed Constitutional Amendment allowing the state to loan textbooks to private schools, a Florissant man told the Senate Constitutional Amendments and Roerganization Committee: "As one who has five children in the non-public schools of Missouri, I have to tell you I am at the limits of my patience at seeing our children treated as third class citizens..

"We have been disillusioned, but not discouraged," said Floyd T. Gilliam Jr., representing the Citizens for Educational Freedom based in Florissant.

A 1972 state law established the book loans, but the bill was ruled unconstitutional last year as a violaton of the constitutional provision for separation of church and state because the bill allowed public textbooks to be used in parochial and other religious schools.

Representatives of the Missouri Baptist Christian life Commission and the American Civil Liberties Union spoke against the proposed amendment, while Catholic educators and a rabbi spoke for the measure.

In other committee action, St. Louis Mayor John Poelker opposed a bill considered by the House Municipal Corporations Committee to provide $1,000 across-the-board pay increases for St. Louis policemen.

The mayor said the bill would cause financial problems for St. Louis.

The Hwang Ho, or Yellow, River is popularly known as "China's sorrow" because of its devastating floods.

Assessment sheets due

BENTON — Scott County Assessor William F. "Bill" Ferrell said Wednesday that all the assessment sheets have been mailed out, and that the post office has returned some as being not deliverable because the person has moved and left no forwarding address.

Anybody who has not received an assessment list should contact the assessor's office immediately, Ferrell said. Persons who have not filled out and returned their sheets should do so immediately, he added.

The last sheets mailed to Sikeston were sent out Jan. 29 and were supposed to be returned within 20 days after they were received, whichmeans all should have all been returned by last week, Ferrell said.

There is really no serious problem, however, Ferrell explained. He said that about 80 per cent of the 16,000 assessment sheets have been returned. He pointed out that state law says if a sheet is turned in past the deadline, the persons hould be charged double assessment.

Ferrell said the sooner the assessment sheets are returned the sooner the tax books can be prepared, and if a problem arises it can be taken care of better.

The assessment sheets are now being processed and will continue to be until the middle of April, when the assessor's office will start typing up the tax books. Both the personal and real estate books must be completed by May 31.

Sen. Jack Gant, D-Kansas City, said it is a "natural law" that if the costs to corporations rise, the new costs would be passed to the consumer.

A spokesman for the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey called the bill "dangerous" and said it would raise personal state income taxes from 14 to 70 per cent.

But Mary Ann Fiske, state coordinator for the Missouri Tax Reform Group, spoke in favor of the bill and said 1,200 petitions are circulating in the state to put the reduction of sales taxes on the 1976 ballot by initiative referndum.

The proponents of the bill argued the tax on groceries and drugs is "an inequtiable tax on necessities."

The bill would not remove the sales tax on food bought in restaurants and would limit drug exemptions to those received through a prescription and on insulin and prosthetics.

The public defender bill recommended by the House committee would extend the public defender system to persons accused of misdemeanors and juveniles facing jail terms.

The bill has been cited as a legislative priority by Gov. Christopher S. Bond and follows federal and state court decisions that juveniles and misdemeanor suspects facing jail terms have a constitutional right to an attorney even though they cannot afford one.

Regarding the proposed Constitutional Amendment allowing the state to loan textbooks to private schools, a Florissant man told the Senate Constitutional Amendments and Roerganization Committee: "As one who has five children in the non-public schools of Missouri, I have to tell you I am at the limits of my patience at seeing our children treated as third class citizens..

"We have been disillusioned, but not discouraged," said Floyd T. Gilliam Jr., representing the Citizens for Educational Freedom based in Florissant.

A 1972 state law established the book loans, but the bill was ruled unconstitutional last year as a violaton of the constitutional provision for separation of church and state because the bill allowed public textbooks to be used in parochial and other religious schools.

Representatives of the Missouri Baptist Christian life Commission and the American Civil Liberties Union spoke against the proposed amendment, while Catholic educators and a rabbi spoke for the measure.

In other committee action, St. Louis Mayor John Poelker opposed a bill considered by the House Municipal Corporations Committee to provide $1,000 across-the-board pay increases for St. Louis policemen.

The mayor said the bill would cause financial problems for St. Louis.

The Hwang Ho, or Yellow, River is popularly known as "China's sorrow" because of its devastating floods.

Cancer drive plans made

Assessment sheets due

BENTON — Scott County Assessor William F. "Bill" Ferrell said Wednesday that all the assessment sheets have been mailed out, and that the post office has returned some as being not deliverable because the person has moved and left no forwarding address.

Anybody who has not received an assessment list should contact the assessor's office immediately, Ferrell said. Persons who have not filled out and returned their sheets should do so immediately, he added.

The last sheets mailed to Sikeston were sent out Jan. 29 and were supposed to be returned within 20 days after they were received, whichmeans all should have all been returned by last week, Ferrell said.

There is really no serious problem, however, Ferrell explained. He said that about 80 per cent of the 16,000 assessment sheets have been returned. He pointed out that state law says if a sheet is turned in past the deadline, the persons hould be charged double assessment.

Ferrell said the sooner the assessment sheets are returned the sooner the tax books can be prepared, and if a problem arises it can be taken care of better.

The assessment sheets are now being processed and will continue to be until the middle of April, when the assessor's office will start typing up the tax books. Both the personal and real estate books must be completed by May 31.

Filing date set March 7

ESSEX–The filing deadline for the school board candidates in the Richland R-1 School District will be 2 p.m. March 7 to fill two positions for three-year terms.

Anyone interested in filing may do so by contacting Mrs. Cozette Rasche in the superintendent's office at Richland High School.

The school levy will remain the same as last year.

Talent Night

...where everybody gets into the act

Ami Childers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Childers of Blodgett, left, makes a funny face in an impersonation of spoiled, talkative "Edith Ann." As for Lily, that is Carla Schlosser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Schlosser of Benton.

PHOTOS AND TEXT BY JACKIE SCHOENEMAN

BENTON--Talent Night staged last Thursday in the Kelly High School gymnasium was devoid of prize winners but someone did win out. Terry Cole, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cole of Bertrand, will receive $100.09 in donations collected from concerned parents and young people, too. (Why else the nine cents?). Cole was badly injured in an auto accident last December and has been in a Memphis hospital since then.

Talent Night was a first and only a small fraction of the activities sponsored by a tightly-knit Parent-Teachers Organization (P.T.O.) members , mostly parents of high schoool, junior high and elementary students. In fact, some of the parents have children , once Kelly students, but now grown or have children too young to enroll. But they refuse to let minor discrepancies like these spoil their being a part of an organization on the go and on the ball.

As Geri Hulshof of Charleston, president of the group, says, "Once you've been involved with Kelly School, you're a Kelly fan forever. It's a fantastic school--small but very close knit." About 800 students are enrolled in the kindergarten through twelfth grades.

So close that bickering rarely occurs and the group can go on its free-wheeling, fun-raising and fund-raising way. Judy Birk of Charleston, secretary of the group. says, "When you walk into the school gym (for a meeting), it's full o(of people). It's not a social thing. It's a working organization."

Evidently so because the group over the years has created a fund to buy eyeglasses and pay for visits to the optometrist or a dentist for about 10 students needing help; purchased a visual aid machine to find visual problems, a used piano, pottery kiln and soon, a public address system will be installed.

In addition, $220 scholarships are awarded to a senior boy and girl wanting to go to college.

However, the biggest fund-raising event is the P.T.O. Carnival in April in the school gym. Parents build booths in their spare time and fathers take time off from spring planting to attend.

Featured are such games as cakewalk, ring in the cane and an old favorite, the basketball throw. Three kings and queens are crowned representing kindergarten through the fifth grades. Sixth through eighth grades and high school.

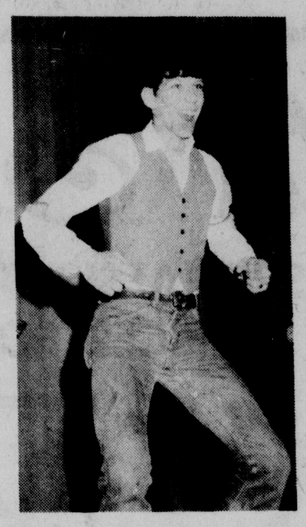
P.T.O. at Kelly School is an active organization because people work together. School officials recommend projects or help schedule the monthly P.T.O. meeting on the school calendar, school secretaries type and produce a meeting booklet and programs, the school's head cook puts a big pot of coffee for parents attending the meeting and two days before a P.T.O. meeting, elementery school teachers send a meeting reminder home to parents via their children.

Everybody gets into the act--and the organization clicks.

Independently, that is. The group voted last November to disassociate itself from the state and national Parent-Teachers Association because both raised membership dues to 65 cents.

Thus, Kelly Parent-Teachers "Organization" was born and boy, is it kicking!

Putting down his poetry for a minute, Raymond LeGrand illustrates a "wild-eyed" fact in his "Hysterical, Historical Reading" of a patriotic poem. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert LeGrand of Benton.



Mike Riley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Riley of Blodgett, thrusts those knees out dancing to Bachman-Turner Overdrive's "Takin' Care of Business", music of the '70s. Rita Fodge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Fodge of Benton, provides a hearty audience.

Karen Scherer kicks a high one in her version of a modern dance tune. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Scherer of Benton.

Arms outstretched and skirt high, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Huishof of Charleston represent the parent talent as they jitterbug to "Boppin' at the High School Hop," music of the '50s by Jerry Lee Lewis.

Don Abner of Benton, junior high school basketball coach, knee bends in a spoof of a pep talk directed to the Kelly High School Hawks boys basketball team. Rather than urging them on to more victories, it turned out he was urging them to sell more popcorn.

Unplanned comedy took place off stage as well when Mike Brasher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Brasher of Benton, entertains youthful admirers with his popping-out monocle.

Remember the old cliche, "a good time was had by all?" Well, P.T.O. members, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Scherer and Roy, a sixth grader of Benton, prove that saying could still be true. P.T.O. events and meetings are usually well attended.

Deaf meat wrapper is disturbed about ignorant and rude customers

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed several letters about the rudeness of both salespeople and customers. I hope you can find room for one more. My letter will be "different" because I am deaf.

I work as a meat wrapper in a supermarket. When I straighten the meat case, customers come up and ask questions, usually when my back is turned. I face the customer and say, "I'm sorry, I'm deaf. Will you please talk slower so I can read your lips?"

Most of the time the answer is "Never mind," or "Forget it." Sometimes the customer looks at me with disgust and walks away. I guess they figure deaf people are too stupid to bother with.

I realize these folks are ignorant, but it hurts to be treated so shabbily. Perhaps if you print this letter they will learn something.--Deaf But Willing To Help

Dear Willing: More than rudeness is involved. Many people are too self-conscious to face a stranger and have their lips read. It's a new experience for them and they shy away from it.

I agree that the behavior of the people you have cited shows a pathetic lack of understanding, but it's another example of the growing lack of consideration and concern which has engulfed much of the world in recent years. Too bad, isn't it?

Dear Ann Landers: I can forgive "Victim Of The Economy" for itemizing the call girl's fee as a "dinner party for the Smiths," but I find it infuriating when my boss (who make $50,000 a year) puts every lunch on his expense account, even when it's his cousin from Davenport. He also writes off all dinners with social friends and family as "business."

Eery trip he takes out of town is charged to the company, even if it's a visit to his in-laws.

He also permits his children, his sister, and his wife's family to use his telephone credit card number. They make calls all over the country and the business pays for these gab sessions. Last spring he had the gall to charge his son's wedding rehearsal dinner as "a party for customers and wives."

The executives in this company voted themselves salary increases of 15 per cent this year, while the rest of us got 5 per cent. Meanwhile, the cost-of-living increase has hit 12 per cent. Just a sign me--A Little Bitter.

Dear Bitter: You don't say whether the company you work for is privately owned or if it has stockholders. If it's the latter, hou could buy one share of stock and make quite a stink at the next stockholder's meeting.

I strongly recommend that you have another job, first, however, In fact, feeling as you do, I suggest that you clear out in any event. I'd hate to work for people I had so little respect for.

CONFIDENTIAL to Tell the Truth, Honey: The truth is NO. I have never had my face lefted. But thanks for the complement. It made my day.

Parents, what should you do if your teenager is having sexual relations? Ann Landers' new booklet, "High School Sex and How To Deal With It--A Guide For Teens and Their Parents," gives no-nonsense advice on how to handle this delicate situation. For each booklet, send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Women are last hired and also the first fired

WASHINGTON AP-President Ford's selection of a woman for his Cabinet and Betty Ford's lobbying for the Equal Rights Amendment have won applause from leaders of the women's movement.

However, many of these leaders combined their parise with concern about a wide range of other issues, including the administration's reaction to problems facing women because of the recession.

Frances Farenthold, chairwoman of the National Women's Political Causus, said Ford's nomination of Asst. Atty. Gen. Carla A. Hills to be secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development "shows he understands the importance of including women in decision-making positions in his administration."

Similar experession of approval came from Ruth Clusen, president of the League of Women Voters, and Karen DeCrow, head of the National Organization for Women.

Other leaders of women's groups noted that Ford recently named Betty Southward Murphy to be the first woman member of the National Labor Relations Board. Mrs. Murphy also was named NLRB chairman.

The women's rights leaders had reservations about endorsing all aspects of the Ford administration.

Mrs. Farenthold said the Hills-Murphy appointments reperesented "the gate-crashers, the ones at the top-but that's not where most women are today.

"Any time you get a recession, the hardest hit are still going to be women," she said. "We still have that 'last hired, first fired' practice. And the elderly are disproportionately women, too, and these groups are just being devastated now."

Ms. DeCrow, who prefers the designation Ms., said the Ford administration "has been saying the right things" but that she is looking for evidence that the administration is enforcing federal regulations banning job discrimination.

"We know that women are being laid off jobs and I'd like to see some action that will help," she said.

The women's leaders also praised Mrs. Ford for her work on behalf of the Equal Rights Amendment, which would ban sex discrimination if added to the Constitution.

However, Phyllis Schlafly, chairwoman of a national group to oppose the ERA, demanded that Mrs. Ford account for any public funds spent in her ERA efforts. An aide to Mrs. Ford said no such funds were used.

Ann Landers

Deaf meat wrapper is disturbed about ignorant and rude customers

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed several letters about the rudeness of both salespeople and customers. I hope you can find room for one more. My letter will be "different" because I am deaf.

I work as a meat wrapper in a supermarket. When I straighten the meat case, customers come up and ask questions, usually when my back is turned. I face the customer and say, "I'm sorry, I'm deaf. Will you please talk slower so I can read your lips?"

Most of the time the answer is "Never mind," or "Forget it." Sometimes the customer looks at me with disgust and walks away. I guess they figure deaf people are too stupid to bother with.

I realize these folks are ignorant, but it hurts to be treated so shabbily. Perhaps if you print this letter they will learn something.--Deaf But Willing To Help

Dear Willing: More than rudeness is involved. Many people are too self-conscious to face a stranger and have their lips read. It's a new experience for them and they shy away from it.

I agree that the behavior of the people you have cited shows a pathetic lack of understanding, but it's another example of the growing lack of consideration and concern which has engulfed much of the world in recent years. Too bad, isn't it?

Dear Ann Landers: I can forgive "Victim Of The Economy" for itemizing the call girl's fee as a "dinner party for the Smiths," but I find it infuriating when my boss (who make $50,000 a year) puts every lunch on his expense account, even when it's his cousin from Davenport. He also writes off all dinners with social friends and family as "business."

Eery trip he takes out of town is charged to the company, even if it's a visit to his in-laws.

He also permits his children, his sister, and his wife's family to use his telephone credit card number. They make calls all over the country and the business pays for these gab sessions. Last spring he had the gall to charge his son's wedding rehearsal dinner as "a party for customers and wives."

The executives in this company voted themselves salary increases of 15 per cent this year, while the rest of us got 5 per cent. Meanwhile, the cost-of-living increase has hit 12 per cent. Just a sign me--A Little Bitter.

Dear Bitter: You don't say whether the company you work for is privately owned or if it has stockholders. If it's the latter, hou could buy one share of stock and make quite a stink at the next stockholder's meeting.

I strongly recommend that you have another job, first, however, In fact, feeling as you do, I suggest that you clear out in any event. I'd hate to work for people I had so little respect for.

CONFIDENTIAL to Tell the Truth, Honey: The truth is NO. I have never had my face lefted. But thanks for the complement. It made my day.

Parents, what should you do if your teenager is having sexual relations? Ann Landers' new booklet, "High School Sex and How To Deal With It--A Guide For Teens and Their Parents," gives no-nonsense advice on how to handle this delicate situation. For each booklet, send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Women are last hired and also the first fired

WASHINGTON AP-President Ford's selection of a woman for his Cabinet and Betty Ford's lobbying for the Equal Rights Amendment have won applause from leaders of the women's movement.

However, many of these leaders combined their parise with concern about a wide range of other issues, including the administration's reaction to problems facing women because of the recession.

Frances Farenthold, chairwoman of the National Women's Political Causus, said Ford's nomination of Asst. Atty. Gen. Carla A. Hills to be secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development "shows he understands the importance of including women in decision-making positions in his administration."

Similar experession of approval came from Ruth Clusen, president of the League of Women Voters, and Karen DeCrow, head of the National Organization for Women.

Other leaders of women's groups noted that Ford recently named Betty Southward Murphy to be the first woman member of the National Labor Relations Board. Mrs. Murphy also was named NLRB chairman.

The women's rights leaders had reservations about endorsing all aspects of the Ford administration.

Mrs. Farenthold said the Hills-Murphy appointments reperesented "the gate-crashers, the ones at the top-but that's not where most women are today.

"Any time you get a recession, the hardest hit are still going to be women," she said. "We still have that 'last hired, first fired' practice. And the elderly are disproportionately women, too, and these groups are just being devastated now."

Ms. DeCrow, who prefers the designation Ms., said the Ford administration "has been saying the right things" but that she is looking for evidence that the administration is enforcing federal regulations banning job discrimination.

"We know that women are being laid off jobs and I'd like to see some action that will help," she said.

The women's leaders also praised Mrs. Ford for her work on behalf of the Equal Rights Amendment, which would ban sex discrimination if added to the Constitution.

However, Phyllis Schlafly, chairwoman of a national group to oppose the ERA, demanded that Mrs. Ford account for any public funds spent in her ERA efforts. An aide to Mrs. Ford said no such funds were used.

MSHSAA rules under fire

The mother of Cape Girardeau Central's star basketball player, Stan "Stretch" Ray, said today that something needs to be done about the inconsistent rules of the Missouri State High School Activities Association.

"What are they drying to do," Mrs. Ray said. "Tell a kid he can't participate in nonschool sports if he expects to be eligible for school teams?"

Mrs. Ray, whose son's eligibility has been questioned because of participation in a Southern California High School "Olympic Development" League, questioned the rules intentions and assets to the young high school kids. "What are they supposed to do in the summer -- run the streets?"

Daily standard sports editor Ron Jaynes came across the apparent violation late last week when he was checking with California league officials about Rays' acceptance of an invitation to participate in California All-American game in late March and his participation in the league.

The 6-foot-10 athlete's mother noted that no one, other than her son, his school and teammates, has been hurt by the publicity. "He (Stan) has never been in any trouble and he's being penalized because he wanted to play ball!"

Dick Marquis, who reported he was Ray's coach this past summer while playing in the Olympic Development League, said Tuesday that he wasn't wanting to hurt the kid (Stan) when he commented about the incident late last week, but that he was caught cold and didn't explain the situation fully.

Although many Southeast Missouri school officials hadn't planned a protest, Cape Central schools has asked for a ruling from the MSHSAA.

It has been the concensus of many Bootheel coaches that Ray was ill-advised as to the playing. "He isn't the one who should be penalized... It's his advisors out there", one school official noted.

Hayti upsets Lions

HAYTI — Coach Don Tomlinson's Indians used a devastating defense here Wednesday night in Class 2A Regional Tournament action to upset Senath-Hornersville 65-44, and gain a Championship berth against Twin Rivers Friday night.

Hayti jumped out front 19-10 in the semi-final game before SHHS fought back within six points at halftime 30-24. Cold shooting by both quintets in the third frame saw Hayti edge further into the lead at 44-34. Then the Indians turned it on in the fourth frame with a 21-10 margin to bury the Lions. Willie Walker and Sylvester James led the Tribe with 21 and 20 points respectively, while Droke was the Lioin's high-point man with 18.

Hayti now advances to a showdown game for the Regional title with Twin Rivers Friday night at 7:30. The winner of that game will meet the Illmo-Scott City Regional winner at the Sikeston Field House March 3 for a chance at the state's quareterfinal rounds.

Scoring:

HAYTI (65)

James 20, Clinton 8, Jones 0, Robinson 8, Walker 21, Curry 8. FG-28; FT-9; PF-17.

Favorites advance

IRONTON — St. Pius of Festus and CRystal City walked away with easy victories Wednesday night in Class 2A Regional Tournament play here. Crystal City won handily over St. Vincent of Perryville 88-71 in the opener, while St. Pius manhandled Clearwater (Piedmont) 69-38 in the night's finale.

The CC Hornets used a six-man double figure attack tod dismantle any regional hopes of St. Vincent's Indians. Led by Dave Pilliard's 24 markers, CCHS ran up a 22-15 first quarter advantage, then kept adding to it the rest of the way. The trio of Dale Buhrle and and the Wengert brothers, Ken and Dick, who totaled 57 of the Indians' points, couldn't overcome the all around balance of Crystal City who took the game from the field 35-25.

A tenacious man-to-man and Terry Werner's 22 points led St. Pius of Festus to a 69-38 laughter over Clearwater. The Panthers fell behind early and it got worse as the SPHS Lancers took every quarter by five-points or more.

Clearwater failed to put a single man in the twin-figure bracket, with the high-point effort going to Rick Haggett with eight. St. Pius outscored the Panthers from the field by a whopping 29-15 margin and added an 11-8 edge from the charity stripe for good measure.

Semi-finals now get underway tonight as Arcadia Valley greets Valle of Ste. Genevieve in the 7 p.m. game, while St. Pius collides with Crystal City in the 8:30 p.m. affair.

The winner of the Ironton Regional will meet in sub-state play the winner of the St. Louis Priory Regional on March 3 at the Flat River Mineral Area College for the right to go on to a satte quarterfinal game set for March 5 at Houck Fieldhouse in Cape Girardeau.

Scoring:

Reitz reports early

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—An infielder anxious to get in shape, third baseman Ken Reitz, has joined pitchers and catchers for the start of St. Louis Cardinal baseball workouts at Al Lang Field.

The 24-year-old Reitz, the National League's leading fielder at his position the past two seasons, was reported by Manager Red Schoendienst to be slightly over his playing weight of 175 pounds.

Reitz hit .271 last year, totaling 157 hits and embellishing 54 runs batted in with seven home runs.

Schoendienst said 17 pitchers and the club's catchers were to engage today in pepper games, running and calisthentics.

CHARLESTON — "Your constitutional right to purchase ammunition for .22 caliber firearms is on the firing line," warned Jerry Robbins, Sportsmens Coalition of Missouri member and guest speaker at the Mississippi County Recreation Association meeting. The Association had Robbins and Ken Babcock of the Missouri State Department of Conservation as their guest speakers when they met in the Knights of Columbus Hall, Feb. 21.

"The Consumer Product Safety Commission, a Washington D.C. bureau that is considering jurisdiction over ammunition sales by virtue of a court order secured by the anti-gun group known as The Committee for Handgun Control, Inc., is proposing to ban the sale of handgun ammunition which would include the .22 rimfire. Passage and enforcement of such law would mean that we would not be able to purchase ammunition for many of our very fine rifles as well as the everyday 'plinker' rifle," continued Robbins. In describing the panacea of gun control legislation that is sweeping both the federal and state legislative bodies, Robbins informed the group that there have already been approximately 150 bills submitted to Congress for committee action. The most extreme of these bills includes total ban and confiscation of citizens ownership of shotguns, rifles and handguns.

"Though well intended, these legislators have not done enough home-work on the total picture, "Robbins continued. "In New York City and Atlanta, where there are total firearm repressive laws that deny citizens firearms ownership, the latest statistics show that they have the highest homicide and crime rate in the United States. Obviously, taking away guns from the law-abiding citizen does not lower the homicide and crime rate," stressed Robbins.

Robbins discussed the Chicago Police Association poll of all the police officers. The conclusion of the officers polled was that 74.5 want to enforce current gun control laws, 19.6 stated that no gun control laws at all were needed and only 3.9 of the officers felt that additional gun control laws were needed.

"We should be working to see that the laws we already have on gun controls are being enforced," urged the Coalition representative. "In St. Louis, where homicide and crime are on the rise, the problem of enforcing existing firearms laws is alarming. In 1974 there were approximately 2000 arrests made for illegal possession of firearms but approximately 99 per cent of those arrested were 'back on the street' since there was only a 1 per cent conviction. We have gun control laws on the books. It is enforcement of these laws that we need," urged Robbins.

Robbins described the Sportsmens Coalition of Missouri as an organization to primarily rally and unite the sportsmen, landowners and public-minded Missouri citizens. The Coalition is registered in Missouri as a lobbyist, not-for-profit, non-partisan group interested in the far reaching activities of the sportsmen, both hunting and fishing, wildlife conservation and public-minded citizens.

In outlining the current plans of action of the Coalition, which is in support of the NRA efforts, Robbins stressed the urgency of citizens to ban together and oppose the upcoming legislation on gun controls and the attempt of the Consumer Product Safety Commission to take away the citizens right to purchase ammunition for rifles. The coalition staff, which is on a volunteer basis, is pushing a public relations campaign to keep the citizen informed and updated through news released, informative articles and guest appearances on radio and television as well as personal appearances before interested groups. The Coalition is urging the boycotting of sponsors of entertainment that in any way advocate the banning of firearms or support anti-hunting groups.

"A letter to your Congressman, state and federal, is like being able to vote again. There is a tough battle coming up in 1975 that ranges from total confiscation of firearms to anti-hunting groups attempts to ban ownership of guns and ammunition that would deny hunters and sportsmen their rights to enjoy and follow their basic interests. "A letter to your legislator is urgent. Let him know that you have a constitutional right to "own and bear arms" and that this right and freedom cannot be denied by an especialy appointed commission," concluded Robbins.

The audience was urged to write: Consumers Product Safety Comm., Box 8137, Washington, D.C. 20024.

For further information write: Sportsmens Coalition of Missouri, P.O. Box 9943, St. Louis, Mo. 63122.

Big game

Lines will begin forming at the Illmo-Scott City high school gym this afternoon at 5 p.m. as the avid roundball fan seeks admittance to tonight's big semifinal round encounter matching the state's second and seventh rated quintets -- Notre Dame and Kelly.

The fans that are unable not to gain admittance might just as well camp out because the winners will lock horns Friday night for the regional title and right to move into next week's opening round state tournament game at Sikeston's field house.

Opening tonight's big semifinal round card will be the state's top rated Lilbourn Panthers battling Woodland of Lutesville.

Hayti upsets Lions

HAYTI — Coach Don Tomlinson's Indians used a devastating defense here Wednesday night in Class 2A Regional Tournament action to upset Senath-Hornersville 65-44, and gain a Championship berth against Twin Rivers Friday night.

Hayti jumped out front 19-10 in the semi-final game before SHHS fought back within six points at halftime 30-24. Cold shooting by both quintets in the third frame saw Hayti edge further into the lead at 44-34. Then the Indians turned it on in the fourth frame with a 21-10 margin to bury the Lions. Willie Walker and Sylvester James led the Tribe with 21 and 20 points respectively, while Droke was the Lioin's high-point man with 18.

Hayti now advances to a showdown game for the Regional title with Twin Rivers Friday night at 7:30. The winner of that game will meet the Ilmo-Scott City Regional winner at the Sikeston Field House March 3 for a chance at the state's quareterfinal rounds.

Favorites advance

IRONTON — St. Pius of Festus and CRystal City walked away with easy victories Wednesday night in Class 2A Regional Tournament play here. Crystal City won handily over St. Vincent of Perryville 88-71 in the opener, while St. Pius manhandled Clearwater (Piedmont) 69-38 in the night's finale.

The CC Hornets used a six-man double figure attack tod dismantle any regional hopes of St. Vincent's Indians. Led by Dave Pilliard's 24 markers, CCHS ran up a 22-15 first quarter advantage, then kept adding to it the rest of the way. The trio of Dale Buhrle and and the Wengert brothers, Ken and Dick, who totaled 57 of the Indians' points, couldn't overcome the all around balance of Crystal City who took the game from the field 35-25.

A tenacious man-to-man and Terry Werner's 22 points led St. Pius of Festus to a 69-38 laughter over Clearwater. The Panthers fell behind early and it got worse as the SPHS Lancers took every quarter by five-points or more.

Clearwater failed to put a single man in the twin-figure bracket, with the high-point effort going to Rick Haggett with eight. St. Pius outscored the Panthers from the field by a whopping 29-15 margin and added an 11-8 edge from the charity stripe for good measure.

Semi-finals now get underway tonight as Arcadia Valley greets Valle of Ste. Genevieve in the 7 p.m. game, while St. Pius collides with Crystal City in the 8:30 p.m. affair.

The winner of the Ironton Regional will meet in sub-state play the winner of the St. Louis Priory Regional on March 3 at the Flat River Mineral Area College for the right to go on to a satte quarterfinal game set for March 5 at Houck Fieldhouse in Cape Girardeau.

Big Orange machine ready

ZALMA — The "Big Orange Machine" in Advance is sitting on the road facing Columbia and next Monday night the driver, coach Carroll Cookson, will crank up the engine and the Advance Hornets will be moving toward their fourth consecutive trip to the finals of the 1A class state tournament for the first time since the Puxico Indians turned the trick in 1950-51-52-53.

Coach Carroll Cookson came to Advance in 1966 after having graduated from Puxico High School 14 years earlier in 1952 where he was on three teams which made the trip t o the state Class B finals. The Indians took third in 1950, and first in 1951 and 1952, while Carroll was guard. Six years later in 1972 coach Cookson led his boys to the state class S championship in Rolla. Up until this point in his nine year coaching career there hadn't been too much attention paid to the Hornets but since 1972 until this year there has been quite a bit of attention paid to the Advance Hornets.

Advance had four boys back of the top six that won the state championship in 1972 in 1973 and coach Cookson drove his "Big Orange Machine" to second place in the state A tournament with a 32-2 record. In 1972 the Hornet record was 27-5.

In 1974 all of coach Cookson's top players graduated with the exception of guard Dennis Dunivan and Roger Daniel but the Hornets had some talented juniors starting and some talented sophomores on the junior varsity team. After the completion of the regular season coach Cookson elevated two sophomores to starting berths on the varsity team and the Hornets swept through the regional at South Iron and advanced all the way to the top four teams in the state before settling for fourth place in the state class A tournament. The Hornets finished last year with a 23-11 mark. This season the Hornets are 21-3 and have a mark since 1971 of 103-21.

There are some people who were quite surprised that the Hornets have even won their regional the past three years let alone advancing as far as they have to the tournament finals. Last year was supposed to be an off year for Advance but the basketball genius, Carroll Cookson, who eats, sleeps and does everything else possible with the orange sphere, combines the right amount of ingredients into six or seven boys and comes up with a winner.

As usual, in the beginning of the year as for the past three years, the public opinion of the Hornets is that they aren't too impressive and they willnever be able to make it this year but their driver, coach Cookson always seems to get his boys to a peak at the regional time when most other teams have sputtered out early or halfway through the season.

The opinion of most mediocre basketball fans is that Advance is strictly a run and shoot team and all you have to do is score more than they do and you can win. But, that's the secret, to scoremore. The Hornets' greatest asset is their defense. Coach Cookson has been maliciously accused of running up the score on other teams but the secret to his success is his press defense. Someone madethe remark that "Advance couldn't shoot anything but layups". The Hornets are averaging at least 80 points per game on the season and just broke the Stoddard County tournament record with an average of 93 points per game which had stood up since 1963. The Hornets points against per game is in the 50's on the season.

Advance is in a tough regional at Zalma with Ellington, Lesterville and Delta being in the top four along with themselves. "It wouldn't surprise me if Delta came out on top", said coach Cookson of the teams in the tournament. "They have a good press defense and a lot of the other teams seem to have trouble with a good pressure defense," he continued.

Coach Cookson has the boys to win it and the boys have the coach so Monday night the "Big Orange Machine" will crank up and start rolling down the road toward Columbia once again in 1975.

NHS sweeps pair from Dogs

ZALMA - Neelyville rallied from a 18-15 first quarter deficit with a 63 point blitz and handed the host a 80-70 setback to give the visitors a sweep of the night's hardwood action after the JV Tigers romped to a 74-52 victory.

Coach Terry Tomlinson's Tigers rang up 43 points in the middle two quarters while limiting the host to 24 and sported a 60-42 lead going into the final eight minute frame of the game.

Deckard scored 18 points and led a balanced NHS offensive attack which included three other players with twin figure scoring.

West was literally a one man show for the Bulldogs, burning the nets for 35 big points.

Priday led NHS's junior varsity win with a 22 point effort while Weekly hit 20 for the host.

Scoring:

ZALMA (70)
Dowen 7, West 35, Kilpatrick 17, Lanberry 7, Burch 4.

NEELYVILLE (80)
Walton 15, Robertson 17, Patsy 16, Smith 5, Deckard 18, Watkins 9.

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The signing of three free agents was announced Wednesday by the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League.

They are punter Jud Johnson from Rocky Mountain College, defensive lineman Charlie Ulmer from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, and defensive back Clay Jackson from San Jose State.

Johnson led the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics in punting with a 44.3 yard average in 1972.

Big Orange machine ready

ZALMA — The "Big Orange Machine" in Advance is sitting on the road facing Columbia and next Monday night the driver, coach Carroll Cookson, will crank up the engine and the Advance Hornets will be moving toward their fourth consecutive trip to the finals of the 1A class state tournament for the first time since the Puxico Indians turned the trick in 1950-51-52-53.

Coach Carroll Cookson came to Advance in 1966 after having graduated from Puxico High School 14 years earlier in 1952 where he was on three teams which made the trip t o the state Class B finals. The Indians took third in 1950, and first in 1951 and 1952 while Carroll was guard. Six years later in 1972 coach Cookson led his boys to the state class S championship in Rolla. Up until this point in his nine year coaching career there hadn't been too much attention paid to the Hornets but since 1972 until this year there has been quite a bit of attention paid to the Advance Hornets.

JEFFERSON CITY — State land purchased in 1972 by a firm headed by the brother-in-law of then - Gov. Warren Hearnes' wife does not have access to a highway.

Because of an auditing error, it was incorrectly reported Feb. 18 that the land, 2.5 acres at the intersection of Interstate 57 and U.S. 62 near Charleston, does have access to a highway.

The purchase price of $3,720 was at an appraised value. An appraisal also said the land would be worth $19,550, if it had access to a highway, which it does not.

A federal grand jury investigating Hearnes and his administration is investigating the purchase, the former governor said.

The then-chief counsel of the Missouri Highway Commission said the land sale, in November 1972 by the commission to the Charleston Development Co., was handled in a highly unusual manner after Hearnes intervened.

DENVER (AP) — The Western Athletic Conference has hired former Northern Illinois University Coach Tom Jorgensen as supervisor of basketball officials, Commissioner Stan Bates announced Wednesday.

Jorgensen, 40, is a native of Chicago and was a starter from 1953-56 on the University of Michigan basketball team. He now lives in Englewood, Colo.

Bates said Jorgensen replaces John Adams, coach at Denver's Lincoln High School who remains as supervisor of WAC football officials.

Speakman joined the force in July 1973.

2 aldermen to be elected

HOWARDVILLE — Two aldermen will be elected in the April 1 city election, according to City Clerk Elesertine Burton, who said the filing deadline for candidates to get their names on the ballot is March 11.

Terms expiring are held by the Rev. James Junior Young, ward one alderman and Leroy Bashley, who has been serving as ward two alderman by appointment.

Filing deadline set in Parma

PARMA — Candidates for elective offices to be filled in the annual city election on April 1 have until March 17 to file their declaration.

Terms expiring are those held by Mayor Randall Ramsey, Collector Flora Garrard, City Marshal Larry Gee, Police Judge John Teeters, Ward One Alderman A. B. Parker and Ward Two Alderman Ivan Pulling.

By The Associated Press

DENVER (AP) — The Western Athletic Conference has hired former Northern Illinois University Coach Tom Jorgensen as supervisor of basketball officials, Commissioner Stan Bates announced Wednesday.

Jorgensen, 40, is a native of Chicago and was a starter from 1953-56 on the University of Michigan basketball team. He now lives in Englewood, Colo.

Bates said Jorgensen replaces John Adams, coach at Denver's Lincoln High School who remains as supervisor of WAC football officials.

Sweetener

Vanilla has a hidden value for weight-watchers. Craving for sweets must be satisfied in order to stop nibbling. Vanilla itself counts only six calories per teaspoon but it brings out sweetness in foods, making less sugar necessary. A small amount of sugar must be present for the vanilla to accent as it is not a sweetner.

Assignment: Bootheel

Western fan realizes dream

EDITOR'S NOTE--This is the first column in a new series to be written by members of the Daily Standard on a once-a-week basis. The columnists will be free to write about anything they feel will be of interest. For lack of a better, or more original title, the column will be called "Assignment: Bootheel." We are open to suggestions, however.

By Tony Pippen

Maybe there are a few who will read this column who can recall the days when they could go to the movie for a dime, buy a box of popcorn for a nckel and spend the entire day watching "B" westerns and serials each Saturday.

I could hardly wait for Saturday each week. I would usually be standing in line at the Strand Theater in Newport, Ark., waiting for the doors to open at 11 a.m. My cousin, Zelner Largent, and I would sit through every movie at least twice before our parents came after us about 7 o'clock. We spent the next week (after school hours, of course) imitating all the cowboys we watched on Saturday.

I can still recall how I used to try to talk with my cheeks puffed out while pretending I was Don Red Barry, or ride one pedal of my bicycle while bending down to pick up a hat from the ground like Roy Rogers did while riding Trigger.

Then I'd buckle my guns on backward and let the outlaws know "I'm a peacable man," just like Wild Bill Elliott did a hundred time while playing Red Ryder. Zelner and I must have ridden a hundred miles on stick horses.

If you are under 30, you may not remember stars like Sunset Carson, Johnny Mack Brown, Tim Holt, Ken Maynard, Buster Crabbe, Allan Rocky Lane, Tex Ritter or Charles Starrett, but I cut my teeth on these. Of course, most kids now days have seen Roy Rogers, Gene Autry and possibly, Hoppalong Cassidy.

I've always wished I could buy a lot of the old "B" westerns and preserve them for youngsters who have never seen them. , not to mention the fact that I also still enjoy watching them.

After 38 years of waiting, I've joined other "film collectors" across this nation and started buying some of the old films. Much to my surprise, I've discovered that there are literally thousands collecting and swapping the old movies. Most of the films are still in excellent condition.

I have the original "Durango Kid" on 16 mm film with sound. In case you are not familiar with the Durango Kid, the star of the series was Charles Starrett, who made over 100 movies. I visited on the WSM Opry Spotlight a few years ago with Tex Ritter and asked him about Starrett. He told me that the former cowboy star was living in southern California in retirement.

Many of the more popular films are getting expensive and some collectors are even buying them for investments, but most amateurs like me buy and trade as many as they can for pure viewing pleasure.

I would like to see several people, who areintersted in the old movies, to form a film collector's club and pool their resources to purchase a couple of films. These films could be viewed by the club members, then traded to other collectors. That way the members could see a lot of the old favorites without spending much money. Let me hear from you if you are interested . I'll have more to say on old movies later.

Listerine, the antiseptic mouthwash, was named for Sir Joseph Lister, famed English surgeon and founder of modern antiseptic surgerv.

Sweetener

Vanilla has a hidden value for weight-watchers. Craving for sweets must be satisfied in order to stop nibbling. Vanilla itself counts only six calories per teaspoon but it brings out sweetness in foods, making less sugar necessary. A small amount of sugar must be present for the vanilla to accent as it is not a sweetner.

Assignment: Bootheel

Western fan realizes dream

EDITOR'S NOTE--This is the first column in a new series to be written by members of the Daily Standard on a once-a-week basis. The columnists will be free to write about anything they feel will be of interest. For lack of a better, or more original title, the column will be called "Assignment: Bootheel." We are open to suggestions, however.

By Tony Pippen

Maybe there are a few who will read this column who can recall the days when they could go to the movie for a dime, buy a box of popcorn for a nckel and spend the entire day watching "B" westerns and serials each Saturday.

I could hardly wait for Saturday each week. I would usually be standing in line at the Strand Theater in Newport, Ark., waiting for the doors to open at 11 a.m. My cousin, Zelner Largent, and I would sit through every movie at least twice before our parents came after us about 7 o'clock. We spent the next week (after school hours, of course) imitating all the cowboys we watched on Saturday.

I can still recall how I used to try to talk with my cheeks puffed out while pretending I was Don Red Barry, or ride one pedal of my bicycle while bending down to pick up a hat from the ground like Roy Rogers did while riding Trigger.

Then I'd buckle my guns on backward and let the outlaws know "I'm a peacable man," just like Wild Bill Elliott did a hundred time while playing Red Ryder. Zelner and I must have ridden a hundred miles on stick horses.

If you are under 30, you may not remember stars like Sunset Carson, Johnny Mack Brown, Tim Holt, Ken Maynard, Buster Crabbe, Allan Rocky Lane, Tex Ritter or Charles Starrett, but I cut my teeth on these. Of course, most kids now days have seen Roy Rogers, Gene Autry and possibly, Hoppalong Cassidy.

I've always wished I could buy a lot of the old "B" westerns and preserve them for youngsters who have never seen them. , not to mention the fact that I also still enjoy watching them.

After 38 years of waiting, I've joined other "film collectors" across this nation and started buying some of the old films. Much to my surprise, I've discovered that there are literally thousands collecting and swapping the old movies. Most of the films are still in excellent condition.

I have the original "Durango Kid" on 16 mm film with sound. In case you are not familiar with the Durango Kid, the star of the series was Charles Starrett, who made over 100 movies. I visited on the WSM Opry Spotlight a few years ago with Tex Ritter and asked him about Starrett. He told me that the former cowboy star was living in southern California in retirement.

Many of the more popular films are getting expensive and some collectors are even buying them for investments, but most amateurs like me buy and trade as many as they can for pure viewing pleasure.

I would like to see several people, who areintersted in the old movies, to form a film collector's club and pool their resources to purchase a couple of films. These films could be viewed by the club members, then traded to other collectors. That way the members could see a lot of the old favorites without spending much money. Let me hear from you if you are interested . I'll have more to say on old movies later.

Listerine, the antiseptic mouthwash, was named for Sir Joseph Lister, famed English surgeon and founder of modern antiseptic surgerv.

Scout reports activities

Robney Hartlein

A Life Scout, Hartlein made the presentation as part of the requirements for a merit badge.

He reported that, during the past year, troop members worked at the rodeo and Cotton Carnival and earned enough money to complete payment on the troop's 10 new tents and had about $400 left over.

In March of this year, the troop must be rechartered, and Hartlein said it plans to purchase a troop first aid kit, plus three small patrol first aid kits.

Hartlein then reviewed the tentative schedule of scouting events for this year.

A father-son campout was held in January at the Senior Base camp at Wappapello Lake, with 21 boys and 17 fathers present.

On Feb. 15, the troop members held a Clean-Up Day, during which they picked up litter in different areas of Sikeston. The day was concluded with a fish fry and troop campout.

In March, plans call for each patrol to camp by itself with an adult leader, instead of participating in the usual troop campout. The troop will also participate in the annual Scout-O-Rama.

A canoe trip has been planned for the last week in April, and the annual camporee is scheduled for May.

During June, troop members have planned a family campout at Van Buren. Members also plan to attend Boy Scout camp in July, and will work at the rodeo and Cotton Carnival again.

Each month troop leaders try to have a merit badge class for scouters who are interested.

Kenneth Hartlein, scoutmaster of the troop, was also a guest at the club meeting.

Kiwanis Club activities announced included a board meeting on Tuesday, fish fery on March 11 and the annual Pancake Day on March 25.

5 Prairie students to attend conference

EAST PRAIRIE--Grady Williford, Lisa Blackman, Bryan Davis, Teresa Ivie and Billy Hatton of East Prairie High School will attend the annual spring conference of Missouri Student Councils March 20-21 at Ritenour High School in Overland. Miss Mary [illegible], counselor, will accompany the students.

The theme for this year's conference will be "Together Today, for a Stronger Tomorrow". In the three days there will be numerous workshops and meetings to help students learn how to make student councils more productive and work together more.

Approximately 1,200 students in Missouri schools expected to attend the conference, and some exchange students from foreign countries have been invited.

Morley — A dance was given by Buck Tidwell of Morley, Route 1, Friday.

Pvt. Eugene Owens, nephew of Mrs. Claud Comstock and Mrs. Ted Joyce of Sikeston, was killed in action over Germany last month, according to a message received here by his aunts.

Funeral arrangements are being held up pending the arrival in Sikeston of the remains of Mrs. Myrtle Sanford, 18, and her 14-month-old daughter, Patricia Jean, who were burned to death in an apartment house fire in Tacoma, Wash., early last Saturday and which also took the lives of 13 others, including the wife and two children of her husband's brother.

The two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Vinson, who was seriously burned about the head and shoulders when a fire destroyed the Vinson home, 514 Murray Lane, Monday, is recovering.

The appointment of G. Lynn Barry, a native of Sikeston, as assistant pardon attorney in the Department of Justice was announced today by Attorney General Francis Biddle.

Southeast Missouri products are two St. Louis University Billikens. Joe Todd of Morehouse is a sophomore and has an 8.8 average for 21 games. Puxico's Grady Smith, a junior, has 12.2 for 22 encounters. Both are starters for the St. Louis cage outfit.

East Prairie -- Alfred Samuel Hopgood, 56, died in the Veterans Hospital, Poplar Bluff, Thursday. He had lived in East Prairie the past 48 years and for the past 35 years had operated a barber shop here.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Carrell of Parma are parents of a baby girl born at the Delta Community Hospital Thursday.

Miss Margaret Elizabeth Perry, daughter of Mrs. Tom Allen, 1009 North Ranney, will be among the 55 freshmen students of Washington University School of Nursing, St. Louis, who will be capped in a candlelight ceremony tnoight on the university campus.

Dr. and Mrs. Ben H. Williams and their young son, 721 Sikes avenue, will leave early Sunday for Johnson City, Tenn., where Dr. Williams will join the staff of the Blevins Clinic. Dr. Williams came to Sikeston 17 months ago to become a member of the Urban Clinic staff.

Sikeston High School's basketball unit, despite a brilliant defensive effort against Dexter, saw its chances for a shot at the class A regional title fade away at Malden Thursday when a Bearcat reserve came off the bench to hit two fielders and a brace of free pitches in 90 seconds of the last 3½ minutes to assist his mates to a 48 to 46 verdict.

The case of the great sneeze

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Charley always greeted the hay fever sneezin' by sneezin'. Unfortunately, he let loose with a great big sneeze while behind the wheel of his smashing new automobile. The result? He smashed into the rear of Hilda's automobile as she slowed down and sent both Hilda and her automobile to the body shop for repairs.

In due course, Hilda sued Charley for her injuries and the damages to her car.

"If he had been distracted by my beauty," she told the judge, I could understand how come he hit me. But he wasn't even looking at me at the time of the collision."

"I wasn't looking at anybody," was Charley's answer. "At the time of the impact, due to my hay fever, I was sneezing up a storm and didn't see Hilda slow down. Certainly, a person can't be held responsible for the consequences of an involuntary act such as sneezing."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold hay fever sneezing Charley liable for the accident?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that Charley's great sneeze was not the cause of the accident. Rather, concluded the judge in effect, the cause of the accident was due to Charley's carelessness in failing to properly watch the road and control his car.

Robney Hartlein

A Life Scout, Hartlein made the presentation as part of the requirements for a merit badge.

He reported that, during the past year, troop members worked at the rodeo and Cotton Carnival and earned enough money to complete payment on the troop's 10 new tents and had about $400 left over.

In March of this year, the troop must be rechartered, and Hartlein said it plans to purchase a troop first aid kit, plus three small patrol first aid kits.

Hartlein then reviewed the tentative schedule of scouting events for this year.

A father-son campout was held in January at the Senior Base camp at Wappapello Lake, with 21 boys and 17 fathers present.

On Feb. 15, the troop members held a Clean-Up Day, during which they picked up litter in different areas of Sikeston. The day was concluded with a fish fry and troop campout.

In March, plans call for each patrol to camp by itself with an adult leader, instead of participating in the usual troop campout. The troop will also participate in the annual Scout-O-Rama.

A canoe trip has been planned for the last week in April, and the annual camporee is scheduled for May.

During June, troop members have planned a family campout at Van Buren. Members also plan to attend Boy Scout camp in July, and will work at the rodeo and Cotton Carnival again.

Each month troop leaders try to have a merit badge class for scouters who are interested.

Kenneth Hartlein, scoutmaster of the troop, was also a guest at the club meeting.

Kiwanis Club activities announced included a board meeting on Tuesday, fish fery on March 11 and the annual Pancake Day on March 25.

Tour supplements study

The third grade class of Mrs. Sara Bennett from Lee Hunter Elementary School supplemented a study of newspapers with a tour of The Daily Standard plant Tuesday. Front row, from left, are Shawn Sain, Doug McFarland, Tina Wilson, Elizabeth Waltrip, Monique DeCota and Cortez Baker. Second row, Tommy Reece, Joe Heckemeyer, Cheryl Harper, Chris Edwards, Jon Fair, Vicky Scheu, David Limbaugh, Bradley McDonald, Brooks Sherman and Jimmy Poerter. Back row, Jay Moore, Connie Blow, Carman Nabors, Rebecca Sullins, Mrs. Sara Bennett, teacher, and Roy Mitchell.

5 Prairie students to attend conference

EAST PRAIRIE--Grady Williford, Lisa Blackman, Bryan Davis, Teresa Ivie and Billy Hatton of East Prairie High School will attend the annual spring conference of Missouri Student Councils March 20-21 at Ritenour High School in Overland. Miss Mary [illegible], counselor, will accompany the students.

The theme for this year's conference will be "Together Today, for a Stronger Tomorrow". In the three days there will be numerous workshops and meetings to help students learn how to make student councils more productive and work together more.

Approximately 1,200 students in Missouri schools expected to attend the conference, and some exchange students from foreign countries have been invited.

THE RYATTS By Jack Elrod

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Feb. 27, the 58th day of 1975. There are 307 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1900, the British defeated the Boers in the Battle of Paardeberg in Africa. The outcome led to the creation of the Union of South Africa.

On this date —

In 1598, Boris Godunov was formally named Tzar of Russia.

In 1700, the southwest Pacific island of New Britain was discovered by the English navigator, William Dampier.

In 1807, the American poet, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, was born in Portland, Maine.

In 1889, a railroad was opened in Burma from Rangoon to Mandalay.

In 1933, the German parliament building in Berlin, the Reichstag, was burned.

In 1939, the U.S. Supreme Court outlawed sit-down strikes.

Ten years ago: The United States issued a White Paper accusing North Vietnam of flagrant aggression against South Vietnam.

Five years ago: Guatemala's foreign minister, Alberto Fuentes Mohr, was kidnapped and held for exchange for a university student who had been arrested.

One year ago: John Ehrlichman, a former aide to President Nixon, rejected an offer to plead guilty to a single charge in return for his cooperation with the prosecution in the Watergate scandal.

Today's birthdays: Actress Elizabeth Taylor is 43. Former opera star Lotte Lehmann is 87.

Thought for today: I am not ashamed to confess that I am ignorant of what I do not know — Cicero, Roman statesman and philosopher, 106-43 B.C.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Feb. 27, the 58th day of 1975. There are 307 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1900, the British defeated the Boers in the Battle of Paardeberg in Africa. The outcome led to the creation of the Union of South Africa.

On this date —

In 1598, Boris Godunov was formally named Tzar of Russia.

In 1700, the southwest Pacific island of New Britain was discovered by the English navigator, William Dampier.

In 1807, the American poet, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, was born in Portland, Maine.

In 1889, a railroad was opened in Burma from Rangoon to Mandalay.

In 1933, the German parliament building in Berlin, the Reichstag, was burned.

In 1939, the U.S. Supreme Court outlawed sit-down strikes.

Ten years ago: The United States issued a White Paper accusing North Vietnam of flagrant aggression against South Vietnam.

Five years ago: Guatemala's foreign minister, Alberto Fuentes Mohr, was kidnapped and held for exchange for a university student who had been arrested.

One year ago: John Ehrlichman, a former aide to President Nixon, rejected an offer to plead guilty to a single charge in return for his cooperation with the prosecution in the Watergate scandal.

Today's birthdays: Actress Elizabeth Taylor is 43. Former opera star Lotte Lehmann is 87.

Thought for today: I am not ashamed to confess that I am ignorant of what I do not know — Cicero, Roman statesman and philosopher, 106-43 B.C.

Sonny Presley Says:
Don't be mislead by higher prices!!

DID YOU KNOW...

1. DID YOU KNOW...the value of your trade-in is at a 15-year high?
2. DID YOU KNOW...the 1975 models average up to 35% better gas mileage than older models?
3. DID YOU KNOW...maintenance costs are lower on 1975 models because of solid state ignition, engine improvements, and sealed bearings?
4. DID YOU KNOW...the 1975's are better values? Most are equipped with steel belted radial tires guaranteed for 40,000 miles of trouble free driving.
5. DID YOU KNOW...Credit is available up to 36 months?
6. DID YOU KNOW...the 1975's have cleaner more efficient engines with exhaust cleaning by the new catalytic converter?
7. DID YOU KNOW....the costs of parts and labor to refurnish your present car, tires tune-ups, etc. make the 1975 models an even better buy?
8. DID YOU KNOW...Sonny Presley Chevrolet is ready to make some of the most attractive offers on 1975 models that you have seen in years?
9. DID YOU KNOW...Sonny Presley Chevrolet has the best selection of 1975 models, styles and options to choose from right now on their showroom floors?

FACT:
Back in the "good old days," 1954 for example, the average buyer spent 5.1 months of his income to pay for a standard size car.

Today the same comparable car takes only 4.4 months' pay and the buyer gets a lot more automobile in the bargain.

Inflation has increased the value of your present car. It's worth more in trade than you might think. Get a FREE appraisal from

Deaths

J. F. Maddox

ORAN — James Franklin Maddox, 79, was pronounced dead on arrival at Chaffee General Hospital about 9:30 a.m.. Wednesday.

He was born Oct. 23, 1895 at Oran to the late Nola D. and Martha Jane Maddox.

On Sept. 18, 1927, he married Bertha Marie Hibner of East Alton, Ill., who survives.

He began working as a telegrapher for Missouri Pacific Railroad at Oran when he was 17, and he later worked for Frisco Railroad until 1929, when he began working for American Telephone and Telegraph Co. at St. Louis. In 1961, he retired as a telegraph repeater attendant from that company and returned to Oran.

He served in the Army in Europe during World War I and was a member of Trinity United Methodist Church, where he had served as a chairman of the board and church lay leader.

He was a member and past worshipful master of Morley Masonic Lodge No. 184 AF&AM, member and past patron of the Morley Chapter No. 342 of Order of the Eastern Star and member of White Shrine of Jerusalem at Cape Girardeau Order of Amaranth Court Nof. 14 of Cape Girardeau and World War I Barracks No. 1311 of Cape Girardeau. While living in St. Louis, he also served as a scoutmaster for several years.

Other survivors include two sons, James Paul Maddox of Houston, Tex., and Edward Jacob Maddox of Waterloo, Ill.; one daughter, Mrs. N.A. Haas of San Bernardino, Calif.; one sister, Mrs. Ella Hall of Oran; and six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Friends may call after 6:30 p.m. today at Amick- Burnett Funeral Chapel, where Masonic services will be conducted at 7:30 p.m. Friday, with Morley Masonic Lodge No. 184 in charge.

Services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Saturday in Trinity United MethodistChurch with the Rev. Earl Statler, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in Union Park Cemetery at Chaffee, with graveside rites conducted by World War I Barracks No. 1311 of Cape Girardeau.

Pamela Parker

CRANE HILL, Ala. — Pamela Sue Parker, 18, of Route One died at 2:45 p.m. Monday at University Hospital in Birmingham following heart surgery.

She was born Feb. 18, 1957 in Detroit, Mich., to Loyd Parker and Nelda Smith Parker, formerly of Bernie, Mo., who survive.

Blue Law repeal dead for this session

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Repeal of the ban on Sunday sales is apparently dead for this legislative session.

The House License and Related Matters Committee voted 5-2 Wednesday to keep the measure in committee. Only Democratic Reps. Johnnie Aikesn of St. Louis and Joe Schorgl of Kansas City approved of the Blue Law repeal.

The proposal, sponsored by Rep. Phillip Scaglia, D-Kansas City, has met a similar fate in previous sessions.

"I accuse Rep. (Frank) Kostron (committee chairman) of duplicity, not representing his people, and betraying the state of Missouri," Scaglia said in a statement released today. "As a result the state of Missouri will be facing an almost certain tax increase."

During hearings on the proposal earlier this month Kostron, the senior member of the House, charged that he had been harassed into giving the measure early committee consideration. He claimed he had been wrongly accused of dragging his feet on the bill when he had not even obtained a copy of it.

Proponents of the measure have included top police officials from both metropolitan areas who contended enforcing the law has has hindered their ability to deal with other types of crime.

Risco sets filing deadline

RISCO — March 22 is the filing deadline for candidates seeking office in the annual city election on April 1, according to City clerk Bill Ramsey.

Two aldermen and a city marshal will be elected.

Officers whose terms are expiring are East Ward Alderman Bob Harris, and West Ward Alderman Oscar Miller and City Marshal Alfred Scott.

alleges that on June 23, 1974, he carelessly and negligently drove into another car on Highway 25 and critically injured two passengers in the second car.

Injured were Linda Chilton, who died on June 23, 1974, and Sharon F. Ryles, who died on June 24, 1974.

Scoggins pleaded not guilty to the charge in Dunklin County Circuit Court on Sept. 25, 1974.

He filed a motion for a change of venue on Dec. 4, 1974, which was approved on Dec. 11, 1974 by Judge Flake McHaney.
